Contingency Clause Is Added To London Naval Treaty

NATIONS MAY BUILD SHIPS IF PRESSED

In Case of Emergency Powers May Build Following Notice to Others FEAR IS REMOVED

Statement Issued to Press By Senator Robinson After Morning Meeting

LONDON, April 17.—(UP)—American fear of foreign entanglements and the British admiral's demand that its building program be unhampered in case of emergency were satisfactorily disposed of in the so-called contingency clause of the naval treaty, Senator Joseph Robinson said today in a statement to the press.

Robinson stressed the necessity of all nations having a free hand to build in case of necessity. His statement said:

"The so-called safeguarding clause will provide in general that, if during the time of the treaty, requirements of national security of any of the three powers whose auxiliary vessels are limited is in the opinion of that power, materially affected by new construction of any nation whose auxiliary program is not limited by the treaty, that power will notify the other two of the amount and kind of building it requires.

"Thereupon those other powers shall be entitled to make a proportionate increase in the same category or categories.

"Since the limitation of armament is a voluntary process which no sovereign power has the right to enforce on another, it is a wise principle, for by so doing, we avoid responsibility for insisting that any other nation must have its hands tied in possible emergencies.

"This clause does not follow article 21 of the Washington treaty, which I objected to when it was entered into, on the ground that it might entangle us in European naval problems and policies. While it is hoped no situation will arise under which any of the three powers may find it necessary to increase their tonnage in auxiliary vessels, prudent calls for a provision for such a contingency. If a real emergency should arise, I should want the United States to be free to act without the consent of others and, of course, we must concede the same right to them.

"It is desirable that those who limit their means of defense should feel safe in that limitation. Otherwise they will not continue the process of limitation."

20 PERSONS IN PHILIPPINES ARE DEAD IN FIRE

Entire Town Wiped Out, 13,000 People Homeless at Centrallopez

LOILOI, P. I., April 17.—(UP)—Balked in its spread by the river between Sagay and Centrallopez, the worst fire in the history of the Philippines was burning itself out today.

Latest reports sifting back by auto couriers from the gutted region were that there were at least 20 known dead and that rehabilitation workers fear that many more charred bodies will be found in the blackened debris of the huge mahogany forest adjacent to the gutted village of Fabrica.

M. E. Gray, manager of the Insular Lumber company, on whose properties the conflagration began, succumbed today of desperation, advised said, and attempted suicide. Friends frustrated the attempt, snatching away his revolver.

The monster blaze, growing as it swept through more than 25,000 board feet of mahogany, was halted on the banks of the river that crossed its path from Fabrica to Centrallopez.

Every report today bore out the catastrophe's scope were under-rated.

It is now known that the entire town and mill were razed. Thirteen thousand natives are homeless.

Five thousand are out of work.

All night, the homeless, panic-stricken peasantry stood at safe distance and watched the red glow above the sky. At intervals, blazing mahogany logs like huge rockets would lunge into the sky as the flames overtook dynamite caches in the woods.

Constabulary working under the direction of the Red Cross were busy today laying the groundwork of rehabilitation in the stricken area.

FARM BOARD PLAN DELAYED IN NORTH

FRESNO, Calif., April 17.—(UP)—The Federal Farm board's plan for farmer monopoly of California's grape and raisin industry appeared due to be tested in the campaign field whether Sun-Maid Raisin Growers' association is solvent or bankrupt.

Seventeen temporary directors of the California Grape Control Board, Inc., the proposed monopoly agency, were named, although it was announced the farm board probably would be delayed a few days.

This postponement, the second in 10 days, was announced today to the question of Sun-Maid solvency, to be determined by renewing negotiations in San Francisco for a $400,000 current financing loan.

DARROW ASKED TO AID INDIAN WOMAN

BUFFALO, N. Y., April 17.—(UP)—Clarence Darrow has been asked to appeal for Lila Jimerson, Seneca woman convicted by her own plea of the murder of Mrs. Clothilde Marchand March 6, it was revealed today.

Raymond Jimerson, president of the Seneca nation, announced today he had sent a telegram to Darrow. The action was decided on by a council of Indians of the Cattaraugus and Allegany reservations at Salamanca.

Lila, who is in the City hospital suffering from advanced stages of tuberculosis, remains indifferent.

Student Held Captive By Rival Faction

WALLA WALLA, Wash., April 17.—(UP)—Barefoot and scantily clad, Vernon Wilkensen, Whitman college student leader, hiked down early today from a mountain cabin where he had been imprisoned after being kidnaped by rival student forces.

An all night search of the Blue Mountain district had been made by fellow students when it was feared that Wilkensen had been kidnaped because of authorship of a "political" editorial in the college paper.

Treaty Signed and Murder to End, Although Gang Kills off Another

CHICAGO, April 17.—(UP)—While "Scarface" Al Capone and his vassal chiefs supposedly made merry amid flowers and signed a new "peace pact," a band of their henchmen raced along Blue Island avenue about midnight in the traditional gangland murder car and assassinated another bootlegger.

Authority that "Scarface" Al and his erstwhile deadly enemies had buried the hatchet in foaming mugs of beer and glasses of hard liquor, came from the Herald and Examiner which said in addition that Capone and his underlings

WOMAN GUILTY OF EXTORTION CHARGE

NEW YORK, April 17.—(UP)—Olga Edie Edwards today was found guilty by a jury on a charge of attempted extortion filed against her by Nathan L. Amster, wealthy traction man.

The attempted extortion charge grew out of demands which Amster claimed the girl made after their association had existed for more than a year. He admitted paying the girl $170,000, including a trust fund, during the course of their affairs.

The girl contended that her small son was the child of the wealthy traction man and denied she had attempted to extort money from him. She claimed all the money had been given her voluntarily by Amster.

First Hanging in 30 Years Ordered By Kansas Judge

TOPEKA, Kas., April 17.—(UP)—Only the possibility of a presidential reelection remained today to prevent the first hanging of a prisoner in Kansas within the last 30 years.

Kansas abolished capital punishment more than 30 years ago, but Wednesday a Kansas federal judge sealed the fate of Carl Panzran, 40-year-old murderer and Leavenworth penitentiary convict, condemned to die on the gallows at the prison next September 5.

The jury, accompanied by the shouted boasting of the crime by the prisoner and his expressed desire to kill all human beings, found Panzran guilty of murdering R. G. Warne, penitentiary laundry foreman at the prison last June. Federal Judge Richard J. Hopkins assessed the death penalty when the jurors recommended no mercy.

LOCAL BRANCH OF PHONE CO. MAY BE SOLD

Control of Operations May Pass Into Hands of So. Calif. Concern

CONTROL of telephone operation in Orange county may pass to the Southern California Telephone company, it became known here today, following receipt of information to the effect that the railroad commission had granted permission to the company to buy interests of the Pacific Telephone and Telegraph company in Orange, San Bernardino, Ventura, Santa Barbara, Los Angeles, Riverside, San Diego and Imperial counties.

The Southern California Telephone company has until Oct. 1, 1930, to complete negotiations started last December, according to the order of the commission. The purchase sum is not to exceed $36,907,273.85, the purchase price formally agreed upon at the start of negotiations.

E. S. Morrow, district manager here for the Pacific Telephone and Telegraph company, pointed out that the Southern California Telephone company has been operating in Los Angeles with properties purchased from the old Home and Sunset companies. He said acquisition by the purchasing company of properties of his company in the Southland would result in the institution of main offices in Los Angeles for direction of operations. The main office of the Pacific is in San Francisco.

The Southern California company has also been granted permission to purchase from the Pacific company the following securities, at a cost not exceeding $7,935,395.41:

$7,345,800.00 of the capital stock of Home Telephone and Telegraph company of Pasadena, and $7000 par value of bonds of Home Telephone and Telegraph company of Pasadena; $2,500,000.00 par value of common and $500,000.00 par value of preferred stock of United States Long Distance Telephone and Telegraph company, and $399,009.00 face value of bonds of said company; $80,590.00 par value of common stock; $42,417.50 par value of bonds of Corona Home Telephone and Telegraph company.

Upon the acquisition of the properties the Pacific Telephone and Telegraph company of Pasadena, United States Long Distance Telephone and Telegraph company, Consolidated Telephone company and Corona Home Telephone and Telegraph company, are authorized to withdraw from the telephone and telegraph business in the territory involved, and Southern California Telephone company is authorized to take over and operate said telephone and telegraph business.

LOS ANGELES, April 17.—(UP)—Traces of Cyanide poisoning were found in the vital organs of Robert Bursian, 35, important Julian Petroleum corporation investigation witness, the county chemist office announced today.

Bursian's body was found yesterday under his wrecked automobile on Beverly boulevard.

After the county autopsy surgeon announced the indication of poisoning, Coroner Frank Nance said a death certificate would not be signed pending an inquest tomorrow.

Bursian, according to the district attorney's office, held information that would have linked a prominent Southern California politician with the failure of the Julian company.

District Attorney Buron Fitts ordered the analysis of Bursian's vital organs after his investigators said they were not satisfied Bursian's death was due only to the automobile crash.

The autopsy surgeon's report stated that Bursian had been drinking just before he was killed.

Transamerica And Smith Bank Slated For Merger, Belief

NEW YORK, April 17.—(UP)—Reports that the Giannini controlled Transamerica corporation is negotiating to take over the County Trust company of which Former Governor Alfred E. Smith is chairman, persisted in financial circles today.

Principals involved refused to comment but the reports were given credence by the fact that the former governor is desirous of severing his banking connections in order to devote more time to his activities as president of Empire State, Inc., a building organization.

Various suggestions as to the form of the reported merger were advanced, including purchase through exchange of stock by the Transamerica corporation and merger of County Trust with the Bank of America, N. A., principal New York unit of the Giannini interests.

PROHIBITION SURVEY OF U. S. COSTING $7,000,000 IS TO BE LAUNCHED BY NEUTRAL GROUP

ATLANTA, Ga., April 17.—(UP)—Twenty widely known industrialists, financiers and educators, it was announced today, will form the board of directors of a new $7,000,000 project to find out how more than 32,000,000 citizens of the United States feel about prohibition.

Edward Kennedy, acting executive director, said the names of the men would be made known in a few days by the organization which is called the National Prohibition Survey.

Working with the board, he said, would be an advisory committee of 97 members, including the governors of several states.

Kennedy explained today how the new organization would function. It will be incorporated under the laws of Georgia, he said, and will have branches in 20 widely scattered American cities. Its purpose will be to "obtain educational facts" for guidance of legislators and any others who may desire them as reference at no cost, he said.

The policy of the organization will be "right down the middle of the road," said Kennedy.

"A New York financial house has been awarded a contract to raise the $7,000,000 on a commission of 4 1/2 per cent," Kennedy said. "More than $50,000 already has been underwritten for preliminary organization work, and under a detailed budget plan, on a strictly non profit, non political, non sectarian, neutral basis, the rest will be raised.

Advisory committee members whose signed acceptances Kennedy asserted he had on file included the following governors: Hardman, Georgia; Bilbo, Mississippi; Hammill, Iowa; Sampson, Kentucky; Parnell, Arkansas.

Other advisory committee members announced by Kennedy included: Mrs. Anna Wilds Strumquist, New Mexico for Governor Dillon; C. T. Hirst, Arizona, for Governor Phillips.

District offices, Kennedy said, will be established in Boston, New York, Philadelphia, Detroit, Buffalo, Pittsburgh, Chicago, St. Louis, New Orleans, Denver, Kansas City, Minneapolis, San Francisco, Portland, El Paso, Butte, Los Angeles and Jacksonville.

"National prohibition survey, an organization," Kennedy said, has no suggestions or amendments to offer in regard to existing prohibition laws; our position is impartial, non political and neutral." The organization's prepared budget calls for an expenditure of $3,000,000 in paid newspaper and radio publicity.

No member of congress will be invited to participate on the advisory board, Kennedy said. Invitations, however, will be sent to the W.C.T.U., Anti-Saloon league, American Medical association, National Manufacturers association, Association Against the Prohibition Amendment, American Federation of Women's clubs and kindred civilian organizations.

ROBOT TO FLY BOMBING PLANE DURING NIGHT

Pilotless Ship to Journey to San Francisco from Sacramento and Back

MATHER FIELD, SACRAMENTO, TO, April 17.—(UP)—The strangest experiment in the history of aviation will be attempted tomorrow night by the army air corps, when a huge Curtiss Condor bombing plane will be sent to San Francisco and return, guided only by a robot pilot.

The mission, according to Brigadier General William E. Gillmore, is designed to test the effectiveness of the new "mechanical pilot," which takes full control of these mighty dreadnaughts of the air and pilots it along a predetermined course with greater accuracy, precision and judgment than human hands.

The big bomber, weighing in the neighborhood of 10 tons, will carry a full crew, Major Hugh J. Kneer, commanding officer of the second bombardment group, Langley Field, Va., will act as control pilot and will report the progress of the ship to Crissy field and Mather field by radio.

Accompanying the mission will be Lawrence Sperry, inventor of the automatic pilot; Hans J. Adamson, representing E. Trubee Davidson, assistant secretary of war for aviation, and Sergeant Henry Dufford, radio operator.

Oakland Sheriff, Deputy, Attorney Under Indictment

OAKLAND, April 17.—(UP)—Burton E. Becker, ousted sheriff; Cromwell L. Ormsby, attorney of Oakland and Los Angeles, and J. L. Davis, Becker's former deputy, were under indictment today charged with bribery.

The indictments, founded upon the testimony of Fred C. Smith, "key" witness of the Eastbay graft investigation, were substantially the same as those reflected two weeks ago by the grand jury. At that time an "accusation" was returned, the effect of which was to compel Becker's resignation from office as its sole penalty, but a true bill was returned against Ormsby.

Clash Between Chairman of Group and Wet Leader Features Hearing Today

WASHINGTON, April 17.—(UP)—John J. Raskob, chairman of the Democratic national committee, was in charge of soliciting funds from Democrats for the association against the prohibition amendment, testimony before the senate lobby committee showed today.

A letter from the association's files revealed that Raskob signed letters asking for contributions from Democrats while Lamont D. Pont signed letters to Republicans.

Another letter read into the record revealed the association seeks to raise more than $1,000,000 this year to conduct state prohibition referendums to show congress the country is wet.

A clash between Chairman Caraway and Henry H. Curran, president of the association against the prohibition amendment, enlivened the senate lobby committee hearing today, when Caraway accused Curran of "not knowing anything" and the witness replied he would "compare favorably" with the committee chairman on that.

Curran, on the stand for the second day in the committee's investigation of lobbying by wet and dry organizations, was being questioned as to whether his organization published all facts in regard to prohibition or only those favorable to its cause.

Senator Walsh, Democrat, Montana, asked if the association published the number of liquor agents killed as well as the number of citizens killed, Curran said he could not answer the question.

"You don't know much about what your organization does," Caraway remarked. "I don't think you know anything," he added.

"I guess I would compare favorably with you on that," Curran said.

Replying to questions from Walsh, Curran said the chief work of his association is the collection and distribution of information. Some of this information concerns the number of deaths at the hands of enforcement officers, he said.

FITTS DENIES PLAN TO QUIT CAMPAIGN

LOS ANGELES, April 17.—(UP)—Reports said to have been circulated in San Francisco to the effect that Buron Fitts intended to withdraw from the coming gubernatorial race were denied here today by the district attorney.

"There is no word of truth in those rumors," Fitts said.

"I am a candidate for governor and I have no intention of withdrawing."

5:30 p. m. the plane will take a straight course to Crissy field. It will be over San Francisco at about 6:10, circle the city and proceed immediately on the return trip, arriving at about 7:30 p. m.

According to Major Knerr, the automatic pilot gives great promise in certain branches of military flying.

"It will be of greatest value in coast defense," he said. "Air planes operated with this mechanism, in conjunction with the radio beacon, can be dispatched on a course to an objective at any distance off the coast within the airplane's cruising radius in any kind of weather."

At an altitude of 25,000 feet, army airplanes will co-operate with astronomical observations in viewing the eclipse of the sun on the morning of April 28, it has been announced at headquarters.

Army planes bearing motion picture photographers will follow the eclipse as it races across the earth at 30 miles a minute. Starting in the Pacific ocean, the path crosses northwesterly across California, passing near Napa, Marysville and Grass Valley, and the army planes will be stationed between the latter cities.

Bombardment planes continued an attack upon Sacramento valley towns today, being ordered to destroy the Willows airfield in the morning and the Woodward reservoir in the afternoon. Attacks by pursuit upon bombardment were scheduled in the neighborhood of Marysville, Oroville, Colusa Junction, Butte, Ione and Stockton.

Autoists Suffer Broken Arms As Car Turns Over

Gilbert Kraemer, 30, well known Placencia rancher, and Malcolm Tedford, of Los Angeles, a passenger in Kraemer's machine, suffered broken arms when the automobile in which they were riding overturned last night in Costa Mesa.

They were brought to Santa Ana, where their arms were set, and then removed to their homes.

The brakes on the car locked on a curve, causing the machine to overturn, according to a report made here today. The men were on their way to Newport Beach at the time of the accident.

agreed to quit murder and pool their resources and income.

Capone elected himself "king," the newspaper said.

A few minutes before the story appeared on the street the latest gangland assassination was flashed over the police teletype, apparently shattering the new "treaty" before the ink was dry on the gangsters' signatures or marks.

The murder victim was identified as Joseph M. Cameron, 40, who came here four months ago from New York, where, his widow said, he was a salesman for a textile mill. Police said he was a bootlegger.

Cameron, who also was known as Joseph Blue, recently was released from the Atlanta federal penitentiary where he served a five-year term for a Cincinnati mail robbery.

The gangsters, according to witnesses, chased Cameron several blocks before they were able to catch up with his small car.

At Thirteenth street, a busy corner even at midnight, the murder car drew alongside and, without slowing down, the assassins fired a burst of shots from a machine gun point blank into Cameron's automobile. Apparently certain of their aim, the three gunmen speeded north across Roosevelt road, the busiest cross-town artery, and disappeared.

Cameron's car swerved into the front of a store and he was dragged out dead. He was shot eight times and the side of his automobile was perforated.

MEXICAN LABORERS KIDNAP AMERICAN

VERA CRUZ, Mex., April 17.—(UP)—Leonard B. Cassidy, of Boston, Mass., was missing today, reportedly kidnaped by a band of discharged laborers.

Cassidy, employed by the United Fruit company, at El Hule, Oaxaca state, has been missing since Tuesday, reports of the incident reaching here said.

Disgruntled workers were said to have hit the Bostonian after a heated argument. They fled with him into the mountains, reporters added, but details of the kidnaping were lacking.

The military authorities sent searching parties into the hills to locate Cassidy in vain.

Now I eat well, sleep well and have good color. In fact, I couldn't feel any better and I weigh one hundred fifty-five pounds. I am glad to answer letters from any woman who wants to know more about the Vegetable Compound."—Mrs. Bertha Stephens, 21 E. Ross Street, Lancaster, Pennsylvania.

Drive Uric Acid Deposits From Rheumatic Joints

Don't Waste Time

There is one right way to end the pain, agony and swelling, when uric acid settles in joints and stubborn inflammation persists. You must take a medicine powerful enough to search out the uric acid deposits and dissolve them.

And this medicine must also have the power to drive these poisonous acid accumulations from the body, through the natural channels.

Get the right medicine and severe, obstinate rheumatism attacks will swiftly leave you and won't bother you again for a long time. You can search for Mother Drug Store, or any live drugist today and get just the kind of medicine you so badly need.

Ask for a bottle of Allenru—a powerful, searching liquid that wastes no time in freeing you from the clutches of your merciless rheumatic enemy—Allenru comes in large bottles—it removes the cause—the uric acid deposits and impurities from the system and speedily pain, swellings and stiffness leaves you and physical fitness returns—if it doesn't do as advertised—money back—Adv.

GARDEN GROVE, April 17.—The choir of the Methodist Episcopal church will present an Easter cantata, "Life Everlasting," by Petrie, at the church auditorium Sunday evening commencing at 7:30 o'clock. This cantata will take the place of the regular services. The cantata is being directed by Irvine German and consists of solos, duets, quartets and chorus numbers, with about 25 persons taking part.

COMPLICATIONS WHICH LED TO WAR DESCRIBED

How the various nations of Europe determined to divide Africa among themselves and how complications surrounding their actions on that continent led to hatreds which resulted in the World war, were described for KREG listeners last night by L. L. Beeman, head of the social science department in the Santa Ana junior college, in his weekly radio class in "International Relations."

Beeman's talk, in part, was as follows: "Modern Europe has had two great periods of imperial expansion. The first followed the discovery of America by Columbus in 1492. The second began about 1870 or a little later. By this date the only territory occupied by uncivilized peoples was in Africa and the only places where there were backward or weaker peoples that could be exploited was in Asia. Now let's trace briefly the activities of the European nations on these two continents. In 1884 an international congress was held in Berlin, at which these nations agreed to divide up Africa among themselves without fighting about it, and also without consulting the people living there. It was agreed that when any nation annexed any territory in Africa it should notify the other powers, who would keep out of that part of the continent. In spite of this agreement three wars were fought and two more barely averted.

Encourage French
"At first Germany encouraged French colonization in Africa, thinking if France could get interested there she would forget Alsace-Lorraine, which she had taken away from France in 1870. England had secured Cape Colony and South Africa. Then the Dutch of Holland got Orange Free State and Transvaal just north of the English possessions. Then the English took Bechuanaland and Rhodesia, just north of the Dutch territory. This threw the poor Dutch right between the jaws of the British lion. England recognized the independence of the Dutch, thinking the land was practically worthless. In 1885 rich gold mines were discovered in the Dutch territory and a few years later rich diamond mines also were discovered. Through the work of Cecil Rhodes, England laid claim to the Boer territory, as the Dutch were called. War broke out in 1899 and lasted three years. The Dutch were defeated and Orange Free State and Transvaal were added to the British possessions in South Africa.

"France had borrowed some money from Algiers in north Africa and had not paid it back. When Algiers undertook to collect it, France crossed the Mediterranean sea and took possession of the little state. She then annexed Tunis and a great part of the desert of Soudan and began encroaching on Morocco. Italy got Tripoli as a result of a war with Turkey and made war on old Abyssinia in an effort to annex that land but was badly defeated. Belgium took a great area in the Congo river region in central Africa. England took also the region of the Nile river in the north-east and the Niger river on the west.

Portugal got territory in both southeast and southwest Africa. Though Germany was one of the last nations to begin a search for colonies she got territories in three parts of Africa. Some in east Africa, some in southwest Africa and some in the central part of the continent.

Germany Peeved
"Germany felt peeved over the success of Delcasse in securing so many allies for France and in practically isolating Germany. There had long been a revenge group in France, ever since the Franco-Prussian war. Now there springs up a revenge group in Germany. In 1905 Russia was crushed by the Japanese in the Russo-Japanese war. Therefore Russia could not give assistance to her ally, France, and France had not recovered from the Franco-Prussian war to be able to fight Germany alone. This was a good time for Germany to get even with France. German capitalists had invested heavily in Morocco and had secured some valuable concessions. These German capitalists now appealed to the German government to support them and prevent France from establishing a protectorate over Morocco and then conferring these concessions on French capitalists to the exclusion of the German. In 1905 Von Bulow, the chancellor of Germany, persuaded Emperor William II to visit Morocco. The emperor landed in Tangier and paid a visit to the sultan, whom he assured he had come to preserve the independence and sovereignty of his country and that all powers should have the same rights in Morocco.

"Germany now was determined on two policies. First, France never should have Morocco unless Germany received adequate compensation elsewhere. Second, either England or Russia must be forced to desert France. An international congress was called to meet in Algeiras, in Spain, to decide this question between Germany and France. Roosevelt was president of the United States then and saw to it that the United States was represented at this conference. In the conference England stood by France. It was decided that Morocco should be independent but under control of France and Spain (a treaty on the idea of independence) that she should be open to the trade of all countries alike and that if foreign help should be needed to preserve order, France should send soldiers to preserve order. In this settlement Germany lost her point. She had failed to break the friendship between France and England and had failed to shut France out of Morocco. However, German pressure on France forced her to dismiss her able foreign minister, Delcasse. This settlement only increased the hatred between France and Germany.

Germany Tests Russia
"Defeated in his attempt to get England to desert France, the emperor of Germany now tried Russia. He went back to Bismarck's policy of friendship between the Slav and Teuton. Russia was now 'the sick man of the east' and needed sympathetic friends, as she was being badly defeated by the Japanese.

"The Kaiser and the czar met in a secret interview and agreed upon an alliance which was to be kept secret, but it never went into effect because the czar's advisors, Count Lansdorf and Count Witte, persuaded him to stay with his French alliance.

"The scene now shift back to Morocco. Disorders broke in Morocco and France sent her soldiers to restore order. Germany sent her warship to Agadir to protect her important interests in the territory in question. As German interests were very slight there, France interpreted it as a challenge to her interests in Morocco and an attempt on the part of Germany to secure a part of Morocco for herself.

"England now perceived that this was an attempt to test her friendship with France. Besides, England did not want her great military and naval rival to have a colony so near Gibraltar and the entrance to the Mediterranean sea.

"Lloyd George, who was chancellor of the exchequer in the English cabinet, made a public address in which he made it very clear that England would not permit Germany to acquire territory in Morocco and would remain friendly with France. This was more impressive because Lloyd George was the most important anti-militarist in the cabinet.

Settle By Negotiation
"Germany and France then settled the question by negotiation. The agreement was that France should have a protectorate over Morocco and Germany was ceded a part of French Congo. This agreement satisfied neither the German nor French peoples. German officials declared themselves satisfied, yet they felt that Germany had been defeated and had lost prestige in the councils of Europe. The people of both nations made threats of war. Germany had failed in the two things she wanted.

ed most, to force Russia or England to desert France and to prevent France getting a protectorate over Morocco. The one thing Germany did get was a large part of French Congo. The French people felt they had held their own but at some cost. They had been forced to give up their able prime minister and part of the African land, but as Delcasse had already accomplished his great diplomatic victories over Germany, still was much ahead of Germany. The friendship and help of England and Russia in time of war with Germany was worth much more to her than a jungle land in Central Africa. Germany knew this very well also and kept on trying to checkmate France.

This Morocco affair made Germany very bitter toward England. England wanted to avert war and offered to pledge herself to remain neutral if Russia and France attacked Germany, but would not pledge herself to remain neutral if Germany attacked them. This seemed to be about all Germany could expect, but she would not accept the pledge. The British government interpreted this refusal to mean that Germany contemplated an aggressive war. In 1914 there were only two small independent states left on all the big continent, Abyssinia and Liberia."

ANAHEIM AWARDS STREET CONTRACT

ANAHEIM, April 17.—The contract for the improvement of South Palm street was let at the city council meeting last night to Atkinson & Reish, Glendale, for the sum of $3291.62. This includes paving of South Palm street from Broadway to the city limits with asphaltic concrete, with concrete curb and gutter.

Two proposals were submitted for disposition of the gas engine at the city power plant. The Southern California Edison company agreed to pay to the city the lump sum of $3500, the city to shut down the engine and buy all current from the Edison company under the old schedule contract, and to dispose of the engine within a year. The Southern Counties Gas company agreed to pay the sum of $1200 and to take over by assignment all its right, title and interest in gas engine and rent same to the city to operate at will, the city to pay operating cost and to benefit from any profit that might be made in operating. The proposals have been turned over to the city attorney for consideration.

Other activities of the council meeting included a report from the city police department, reporting 17 cases handled and fines paid totaling $1165. O. E. Steward gave a report on sections 2, 3, 4 and 5, of the joint outfall sewer.

FOR PLANE SAFETY

LONDON, April 17.—A simple, yet effective device has been installed on a few airplanes in England which aids them in landing on dark nights. Beneath each wing a small searchlight is fitted with the beams of light converging. The distance at which they cross each other, forming a large patch of light, is known to the pilot, so as soon as he sees the light on any surface he knows how far he is from the ground.

AN EXPERT CHEF'S ADVICE ON MAZOLA —

and how it helped his daughter in her cooking—

Corn Products Refining Co.
New York City.

Gentlemen:

During the first few months of my marriage, I used any number of different kinds of shortenings for my cakes and pies. As my cooking was always very successful, I did a lot of it and having finally decided that there was nothing like butter for shortening and frying, I soon found my budget soaring beyond our means. "Hubby" still demanded desserts and I insisted that we could not afford them.

Strangely enough, though, my Dad was an expert Chef and I had never thought to ask his advice. Then, one day he watched me making a cake—

"Why don't you use Mazola, daughter?" he questioned.

"For cake?" I asked. "I use it for salad dressing but never dreamed of putting it in a cake."

"Try it sometime," he insisted.

I did—and I really think it is a great deal better than butter for cake-making. I was amazed the first time I used it for a pie crust, for I had always believed one had to have a solid shortening, but Mazola is much easier to mix evenly and I use it all the time now. In frying doughnuts, it heats up so quickly and doesn't burn so easily either. I never had such light, greaseless doughnuts before. I'm sure glad I followed Dad's advice about Mazola.

Thousands of emigrant wagon trains trekking westward in the early days were lubricated by the fat of wolves that hounded their trails. The howl of the wolf in the dead of night was frequently a welcome sound to the hardy pioneers—presaging easier going on the morrow.

Canadian Runs Business By Great Radio Chain

FRENCH PRESIDENT RADIO FAN

DOUMERGUE IN CLOSE TOUCH WITH WIRELESS

BY MINOTT SAUNDERS
NEA Service Writer

PARIS, April 17.—Though President Hoover may get up early in the morning to catch a fish, President Doumergue of France gets up in the middle of the night to catch America on the radio.

President Doumergue is an ardent radio fan, and to date his proudest boast is that he got Chicago, Stamboul, Moscow and Barcelona on his own set in one sitting at the Elysee Palace.

Doing this keeps him up at all hours. Being six hours ahead of Chicago, he must be up at 4 in the morning to hear a 10 o'clock program there. But "Gastoune," as the president of France is affectionately called, is a bachelor, and the only interference he has in tuning on his loud speaker is atmospheric.

Follows Developments
Aside from wireless programs, Doumergue is interested in all radio developments. When he heard that William Loth, famous French scientist had invented a radio signal system that would do away with lighthouses, he insisted upon paying a formal visit to the works at Vaux-Verneuil, about 30 miles from Paris. The weather was bad and, with Laurent Bynac, air minister, he braved two snow squalls to make a thorough inspection.

Loth explained he had a perfect system for guiding ships and airplanes by radio-telephony. Two "radio-phares" are placed on either side of the channel to which ships should steer, and they emit signals in dots and dashes. Listening apparatus on the ship, which may pick up the sounds at great distances, will tell the navigator whether or not he is on his course. If he hears more dashes than dots, for instance, he is to the right; more dots than dashes, he is to the left, while an even sequence of both means that his course is true.

Variations permit the guiding of a ship around a storm and putting it straight again on its course. Signals may be placed along coasts and near dangerous water to warn the navigator as lighthouses do now.

Loth's invention, he explained, will also guide airplanes through dense fogs, informing pilots of their altitude, of the position of landing fields, and guiding them to a safe landing.

ASK MORE CHANNELS
The Federal Radio commission has been approached by the state of Wisconsin for the allotment of more radio channels to stations in the state. Although the thirteenth largest state, Wisconsin has not a single cleared or national channel.

MRS. HUBBARD FEATURED KREG ARTIST TONIGHT

By THE RADIO EDITOR

A program which should hold a great deal of interest for those interested in the activities of the 4-H club, organization of junior farmers; another of the extremely interesting lectures brought weekly to KREG listeners by the Santa Ana Medical association; Elizabeth Reeves Hubbard, in a group of old southern melodies, and an hour of dance music, as played by remote control from the Rendezvous ballroom by Everett Hoagland and His Troubadors, constitute the highlights of the entertainment to be offered to radio fans tuned in tonight to KREG, the official broadcasting station of The Register.

Tonight's program will open at 4 o'clock, with the initial period, from 4 to 4:30, offering studio entertainment. Following that will come the daily entertainment for the kiddies, the Daily Children's Hour with Inez Moore, which will continue to 5 o'clock. The Shoppers' Guide musical program will occupy only 45 minutes tonight, from 5 to 5:45, with the late news dispatches being read between 5:45 and 6 o'clock instead of at 7 o'clock. Tom Hart will strum his melodious banjo for a half hour starting at 6 o'clock. Carl Brewer will sing a lot of old-time songs between 6:30 and 6:45, at which time Vina Barron, Spanish vocalist, will go on the air with a 15-minute program. The 4-H broadcast, with members of the West Orange 4-H club presenting the entertainment, will be on the air between 7 and 7:15 and the succeeding 15 minutes will be taken up with the weekly medical lecture delivered by a member of the Santa Ana Medical association. Elizabeth Reeves Hubbard, whose southern songs hold a great appeal for listeners, will take possession of the mike at 7:30 and will sing until 8 o'clock.

"Those Three Boys" will make sweet Hawaiian music for an entire hour tonight, from 8 to 9 o'clock, and then, from 9 to 9:15, Lizzetta Phillips, dramatic soprano, will present her nightly program. "Smilin' Eddie" Marble, KREG staff announcer and tenor, will sing his nightly 15 minutes of requests starting at 9:15 and the period from 9:30 to 10 o'clock will bring J. C. Huse, old-time fiddler, playing on the Diamond bootery, the Yost Halmay shop and the Horton Furniture company.

The station will remain on the air for an additional hour tonight for presentation of the dance music played by Everett Hoagland and His Troubadors. The program will come by remote control from the Rendezvous ballroom, in Balboa.

BOSCH RADIO IS INSTALLED FOR HOSPITAL FOLK
PORTLAND, Ore., March 13.—The Eastern Oregon State hospital has gone to great expense to install a radio set at the hospital with 21 separate loud speakers, one in each of the 18 wards, one in the lounge and two in the auditorium.
A standard Bosch screen grid set has been placed in the operating room in the auditorium. Wires lead from the set to every wing of the building to carry the programs to all of the inmates of the hospital.
J. E. Frizell, chief engineer of the hospital, installed the set and wired the hospital for the loud speakers. According to Dr. W. D. McNary, superintendent, the installation is very satisfactory.
The set is a combination phonograph and radio so that when radio reception is not good, phonograph records may be used. It will probably be operated one hour in the afternoon and two hours in the early evening every day, Dr. McNary says.
Installations similar have been made at the Tuberculosis hospital at The Dalles, in the hospital in Salem and in the girls' training school in Salem.

HUSBANDS HAVE SAY
Men make more independent radio set purchases than women, according to a survey taken by the U. S. department of commerce. The survey indicates, however, that when both husband and wife make a purchase, the feminine tastes are generally catered to.

HUNT RADIO TROUBLE
The Radio Interference Squad of the Canadian department of marine and fisheries keep a fleet of 24 automobiles hunting inductive interference and correcting the trouble. Sixty full-time and 40 part-time men comprise the squad.

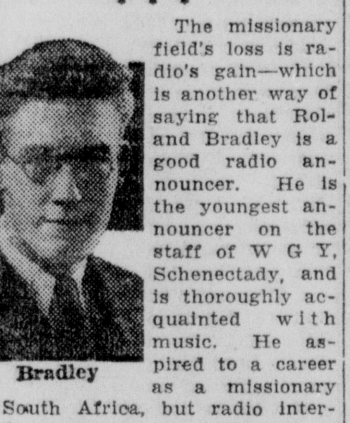

USES RADIO NETWORK TO RUN HIS BUSINESS

James A. Richardson, operating the largest independent hookup of radio stations in Canada, is shown inset in the map giving location of his stations. Black dots designate short wave stations and circles indicate long wave units.

BEFORE THE MIKE

"My kingdom for a horse!" exclaimed Pat Flanagan, when he uttered a complaint against having to dash madly back and forth between WBBM's studios in Chicago. Sure enough, he received one. It was a wooden hobby horse a youthful fan had his father send Pat.

"I'll take a strong wind to help Dale Wimbrow put over his latest orchestral unit. The CBS artist has organized a seven-piece accordion ensemble which will be heard over the network very soon."

New series on the air: Plant Problems, WLW, Cincinnati, Friday at 7:15 EST. Moxie Hostess, NBC Red network, Mondays, Wednesdays and Fridays at 4 EST.

"We Turn the Pages," WOR, Newark, Tuesdays at 12:05 EST. Symphonic Islanders, WIP, Philadelphia, Fridays at 8:30 EST. "Musical Journeys," WOR, Newark, Sundays at 10 EST.

Out on the air: Rudy Valee of NBC and Claude MacArthur of CBS are both "southpaws." . . . Charles Rothman of WMCA, New York, is almost able to recite the dictionary backwards. . . . John Rhys Thomas, tenor of KNX, Hollywood, weighs 212 pounds.

CHANGE WAVES TO IMPROVE RECEPTION
WASHINGTON, April 17.—The stations specifically ordered on few frequencies by the federal radio commission in its efforts to put an end to cross-talk interference were WFLB, Syracuse, N. Y.; WTKT, Nashville, Tenn.; WLAC, Nashville, Tenn.; WKYC, Covington, Ky.; WORD, WJAZ, WSOA, Chicago; WKWB, Buffalo; KJFE, Oklahoma City; KGA, Spokane, Wash.; WSV, Mount Vernon, N. Y.; KSTP, St. Paul, Minn.; WLEY, Lexington, Ky.; WMBO, Auburn, N. Y.; WLEX, Lexington, Mass.; and WSSH and WMAF, Boston, Mass.

These changes are now in effect. The commission ordered them made without a hearing, as is within its power.

They are to be distinguished from changes in frequencies recommended for 28 clear channel stations. These 28 are asked to report on the proposed changes promptly, as the commission wants to put the plan in effect soon.

Wisconsin Makes Plea For Quota Of Clear Waves
WASHINGTON, April 17.—Declaring that Wisconsin is "indisputably below her quota in broadcasting facilities," the delegation of representatives from that state appeared before the federal radio commission and demanded a just share of channels in proportion to its population.

Representative Charles A. Kading, of Watertown, spokesman of the delegation, declared the state is the thirteenth largest in the nation, yet it does not have a cleared or national channel. On the basis of its population, he said, it is "unquestionably entitled to one of these channels." He said also that it is under its quota as to regional channel assignments, but has its numerical share of "local" channel assignments.

COVERS ENTIRE COUNTRY WITH THREE HOOKUPS

WINNIPEG, April 17.—One man owns what is said to be the largest independent network of radio stations in Canada, if not the world. This hookup helps him run one of the largest wheat exporting firms in the world and one of the dominion's first air transport lines.

James A. Richardson, grain broker, not yet 45, is the business man who is using this modern means of conducting his activities. From Montreal in the east to Vancouver in the West his various networks keep him in constant communication with every small detail of his large holdings.

Richardson maintains three separate networks. One of two stations, CJRM at Moose Jaw, Sask., and CJRW, Fleming, Sask., broadcasts entertainment.

Another chain, a short wave network, used for aeronautical communication between different air bases, includes stations CGK, at Hudson, Ont.; CGL, Winnipeg; VFM, Vancouver; VFL, Swanson Bay, B. C., and others at The Pas and Cold Lake, Manitoba, and Prince Rupert, B. C.

Short Wave Market Reports
A second short wave hookup, used mainly for grain market reports, has outlets in Middlechurch, Man., Winnipeg, Vancouver, Edmonton, Calgary, Saskatoon, Moose Jaw, Brandon and Montreal.

Richardson's short wave transmitter at Middlechurch, CJRW, using 25.6 meters, is said to be the only Canadian short wave station heard in West Africa, and it is the only short wave station in the dominion on the air daily.

In Winnipeg he maintains three short wave stations to handle numerous grain communications in this center of the Canadian grain trade. These stations, all operating below 50 meters, are CDK, CKL and CKW. From them go quotations that are picked up at the other short wave stations owned by this grain broker. There are 11 stations in this network. One can readily see why Richardson's network is the largest.

YOUNGSTER IS DISTANCE FAN WITH CROSLLEY

"The younger generation is certainly quick to take up new ideas and do it in such a matter of fact way that it is rather startling."

The speaker was Frank G. Macomber, general sales manager of The Crosley Radio Corporation of Cincinnati, who continued:

"Only a day or two ago I was astonished to receive a neatly typewritten letter from a 10-year-old radio fan that would be a credit to one three times his age."

"The other day my father got me a Crosley Buddy model radio. I have it in my bedroom and I am giving you some of the stations I have heard. (A long list followed, including WLW, WSAI of Cincinnati, and stations in Cleveland, Chicago, Pittsburgh, St. Louis, Kansas, Davenport, Iowa; Atlanta, Georgia; Nashville, Tennessee; St. Petersburg, Florida; Shreveport, Louisiana, and many more.)

"There are a lot of other stations that I don't know the call letters, but I know where they are and will get them and write to you later on. I am ten years old and my sister Patricia Ann is eight and a half and can almost run my radio as good as I can."

"Yours very truly, Max Palm, III."

"Just think of it," continued Macomber, "here is a 10-year-old boy operating his own radio receiving set, getting programs from stations in many parts of the United States and sending a well-composed typewritten letter to the radio manufacturer telling how well he likes it. Truly, radio is one of the greatest marvels of man's ingenuity, not only because of what it does, but also the changes it is bringing throughout the world. By carrying information, education and entertainment into millions of homes it is making possible progress and development of man undreamed of even ten years ago."

NEW FIELDS AID IN SALE OF BATTERIES

NEW YORK, CITY, April 17.—While certain new uses for B batteries have come into existence of late, the battery operated radio receiver is by far the largest, and most important B battery user, and from all indications will continue to be so for a long time to come, according to a recent survey compiled by E. E. Horine, of the National Carbon company.

Well over half of the battery-operated receivers are in towns and cities, the remainder being on farms and in rural communities where central station power is not available, the survey developed. Horine said:

"Is your Radio Sick? Don't put up with faulty radio reception, when one of our experts can fix it up in a jiffy. Scores of radios all over Santa Ana and Orange County have been 'cured' by our expert technicians. . . . they know just the prescription to administer, be it faulty tubes, loose connections or a more serious problem. The complete line of parts carried by us, plus the skill and knowledge of our repairmen are sure cure for radio ills."

CHAPTER 24

There was more than one cabin on the ranch in the Santa Ana mountains. When Dory and Dory went up for Easter Mrs. Penfield occupied the larger one, and took the three boys and Julia there, and Mary and Edward and the baby came up for two nights, picking out the regular accommodations with couches and hammocks.

The early April days were sunny and hot, the place was smothered in wild blooms, bird songs, and mountain fragrance of redwoods, lilacs, wood smoke, and freshly soaked earth, and the creeks ran noisily and full. At night there were wood fires everywhere.

She rose early, during these happy days, and consulted with various Chinese, nurses, and ranchers about eggs and milk and meals for the day. Judge, Thursday and Stringy, with little Porter hopping in their wake, went out after the engineers and their men; a road was being regraded, up and around the mountain's big shoulder toward the summit two miles above, and the sharp boom of dynamite, and the pulsing of the dirt shovels, punctuated all the spring silence.

The older woman's talk, when she and Dory were alone, was still filled with maternal mourning over Rhoda, who had thrown her life away, in her mother's opinion, and with poor Jerry, whose prospects had been so affected by that unfortunate leg of his; with concern for Julia's persistent thinness and scrawny, and Stringy's almost positive flunking, and sometimes—only on a deeper, quieter note, as if the realism of this great eclipse and the exposure of the unimportance of the others, in spite of herself—sometimes about Tom who had been drowned.

"I'm glad he's not another Tom—this baby. It seems to make everything about him happiness."

Dory's face was deathly pale; she kissed the top of her own boy's fluffy bright head.

"How do mothers bear it?"

"I don't know, Dory. I remember thinking of all the boys, not much older than Tom, who were rotting on the fields of Flanders, and I remember thinking God that Tom hadn't ever hated or feared anything or anyone. . . . And then I remember thinking of the Judge, that I must see him first of all, when he arrived that night, and that he mustn't find me broken."

"Yes, I can understand that," Dory said, after thought. "I could see that. I could lose the baby, I could bear it. But I couldn't bear having to make Jerry bear it."

"There had been a lovely young mother at the lake the year before a Mrs. Pearsall, with three young children, and she had died that winter, of flu, and I remember thinking how much more terrible that was. To have three dear babies grow up without any mother. . . . "But then," Dory said, in a silence, "then how can any law, or any judge, or any husband, for that matter, talk about taking children away from their mother?"

"How do you mean, Dory? When she's a criminal?"

"Oh, no, no. But I was thinking of that case in the paper. That woman down South, whose husband discovered something about her early life, when she was only 15, and who is suing to have her marriage annulled, and get his children."

"Oh, Dory, there must be something more to it than that. What sort of a man would do that? He must be in love with some other woman."

"Well, whether he is or not, that's the case, as the papers give it. And I have been following it."

"He found out that she had been—you can't call it unfaithful, exactly, before she even knew her husband."

"But they do call it that. Pre-nuptial infidelity."

"Is the other man dead?"

"No, I believe not. He's a neighbor, I think. Anyway, he's alive."

"Ah, well, that is a very hard situation for a man," Mrs. Penfield mused, shaking her head ruefully, pursing her lips.

"Harder than for a woman, if the case were reversed?"

"Oh, yes, I think so. Don't you? Because a man—"

Mrs. Penfield hesitated, and after a moment Dory said, "A man what?"

"Well, men feel very differently about these things," Dory laughed briefly.

"It's a man's world, all right," she observed mildly.

"Well, I don't know," Mrs. Penfield protested, considering. There's nothing to prevent a girl from telling a man, before they are married—"

"Except that it might break off the marriage."

"It was explained to me something like this, once, Dory, and it made quite an impression on me. It's as if a girl discovered, some years after marriage, that her husband had forged, or embezzled, or turned traitor to his country," the older woman said presently, smiling at Dory, who came up hot and dusty, and threw himself on a redwood needles at their feet. "How would she feel if she knew that the man she loved had had his head shaved, and had been locked into a cell every night for several years?"

"It would make her love him more," Dory said firmly.

"What would make you love me more, Dory, and I'll commit it between now and supper," Dory said.

"We're talking of that unfortunate Shotwell case," Mrs. Penfield said.

"Ah, that's a miserable mess. One would have felt that for the kids, if for no other reason—"

"That's what Dory and I were saying. And yet, Dory, it is hard for a man to be shamed before his whole neighborhood, to feel that the woman he honored and respected above all—Dory, that child is actually pulling himself up by the chair. Look at him!"

"Oh, yes, he does that now. He's as strong as an ox. It just wears me out giving him his bath. I'm soaked, and the bathroom soaked, and toys and water and soap suds all over everything."

"What were we talking of, Dory, a minute ago?"

"The Shotwell case," Dory supplied composedly.

"Oh, yes! Poor creature," Mrs. Penfield said.

"Poor creature, anyway, to be married to a man like that," Dory summarized it.

"They sat on for a few minutes peacefully, delaying the break for showers, naps, luncheon, as long as they could. But Dory did not speak again."

The day after they all returned home, a Monday, Dory saw Wally Oliver again.

The sight of him was like a blow upon her heart. It seemed too terrible to be true, and left her weak and breathless for a second, unable to move or to speak.

Now to see him sauntering along University avenue, looking in at the bookstore and the market windows, was a painful awakening. The bulging big shoulders, the dirty tan derby, the familiar loose checkered brown suit, were all unmistakable; Dory, who was coming out of a drug store, retreated within it again, and stood staring blindly at a case of rubber swimming caps; her head ringing, her senses in utter confusion, trying to think what she should do.

"Oh, my God, he is going to our house—Jerry's!—oh, what will he say! What will I say!"

Her heart was beating so violently that all possibility of coherent thought was wiped out by its heavy, sick throbbing. Dory pressed her hand tightly against it.

After a while she went to the door again and looked down the street. Wally was not in sight there, but she had another second of vertigo when she rediscovered him, almost immediately opposite, looking into a candy store.

She walked home on her own side of the street. Once or twice she glanced back; Wally was not to be seen.

Nightmare days followed, in which a sense of impending calamity trembled like an undercurrent through everything Dory did and said. She played croquet on that particular mellow spring afternoon, and she and the Judge signally routed Edward and Margaret Peacock from next door, and then Dory and her father-in-law walked slowly over the place, discussing flowering borders and tree surgery, and Rhoda's affairs, and little Mary, in that leisurely, inconsequential way the old man so much enjoyed.

It was his favorite hour in the twenty-four; his demand, at such times, was always simply for "a girl."

"You were quite right, Dory, you were quite right, we must forgive Rhoda and Perley—we must make them welcome here whenever they want to come," he said today, walking up through "Pony Wait," and on between the gracious big white-washed barns and the interlaced fences, all gilded and tree-shadows, in the afternoon light. "We want Rhoda to be happy—that's all that matters. You put that to me, my dear."

"I don't remember—"

"Yes. You said that Rhoda's being happy was all that mattered."

Dory was silent for a full minute. "Then I was just quoting the Penfield doctrine to the Penfields," she presently said. "For everything I've ever learned of family love and—happiness, I've learned here!"

"You and Jerry have the perfection of it, now, Dory, with your nursery, and your love for each other—"

"Yet Jerry's had his terrible setbacks."

"Yes. Yes. Very true. But it looks like a big stretch of sunshine ahead," the Judge said contentedly. "God grant it!"

"Amen," said little Dory, from the stile.

ELECTRIC HOG "STICKER"

MUNICH, April 17.—The human hog sticker has been replaced in slaughter houses here by electricity. This system of hog slaughter is said to be more humane than the stabbing method. Hogs to be slaughtered are run down a chute where an electric current is shot into their bodies. Only ten seconds are required to kill each hog and 200 of them have been slaughtered in an hour.

SHERWIN-WILLIAMS PAINT HEADQUARTERS

Specify SWP and engage a good painter

Why SWP costs less on your house than any other paint

What will it cost to paint your house? This is what concerns you—not what the paint costs per gallon.

While fine old SWP costs more per gallon, it costs less on your home than any other paint. Why? Because one gallon of SWP will thoroughly paint almost twice as much surface as a gallon of cheaper paint. Therefore fewer gallons of SWP are needed.

So—ignoring the fact that SWP lasts twice as long as cheaper paint, and that its weatherproof colors retain their beauty to the very last—the first cost of painting your house with the world's best house paint is actually less than that of cheaper paint. Buy your paint on a job basis and save. Let us prove it to you by simple arithmetic.

CITY LEAGUERS DRAW RULES TONIGHT

Anaheim, Whittier Clubs To Beat For Flag

SANTA ANA AND FULLERTON IN TUSSLE FRIDAY

The team that wins the National Night Baseball league championship this season will have to beat two hard pan entries—Anaheim and Whittier—if the small talk heard about the circuit today is anything else than horse radish.

Those who watched George Pace's Valencia—they are trying to get away from that Colonist stuff—horseplay a very good Garden Grove club with ease in the season's opener Tuesday night say the Anaheim outfit is anywhere from 50 to 100 per cent a better group than the one Billy Knott had on his hands last semester.

And those who were in the stands at Fullerton where "Rube" Ellis made his impressive debut as a night baseball skipper by engineering Whittier to the easiest sort of a win over a Fullerton team, that despite the 12 to 2 score was no soft touch, are just as positive that there is nothing to this race but Whittier.

Strangely enough, all should be known Saturday, which actually is only the second day of the season.

The schedule-makers arranged for Anaheim to meet Olive, the giant-killer, and for Whittier to face Long Beach, the champion of 1929, and if Anaheim and Whittier push over that kind of competition with the nonchalance they did Garden Grove and Fullerton, it might be well to put a red circle around May 2, for nothing else will matter. It is on May 2 that Anaheim faces Whittier.

Meanwhile, Santa Ana's Stars, disappointed over their defeat by Olive last Tuesday but believing this was due to strong opposition rather than their own inferior play, are determined to get their bearings in the Bowl tomorrow night when they play Fullerton.

Ed Banta, the new gunner from Madera, will work this one for the Stars and it will be interesting to discover whether Banta is going to get by against National league batting. Those closest to the situation say Banta has more stuff on the ball than any moundsman that ever worked for Santa Ana and as soon as he pitches himself into condition, and the control that comes with condition, he will make the fans here forget all about Glenn Stockbridge and Joe Ochoa.

Another game of considerable Santa Ana interest will be played at Garden Grove tomorrow, George Lackaye's Orangemen, including a bevy of Santa Ana pastimers who won their first start impressively, will go against the Chilpeppers.

Lackaye wants all his men to report for practice on the Orange field tonight. His talent was assembled hastily in order to let the league get away as scheduled and had never practiced together before it went up against Jimmy Mansfield at La Habra Tuesday.

La Habra invades Huntington Beach for the other Friday brush. This one will match a couple of erratic but capable southpaws, Mansfield and Howard Morning.

Par meant nothing to F. E. Welch of Laguna Beach who shot a 44, three under perfect figures, at the Midget Golf course, 2036 North Main street, and won the men's tournament conducted by the management of the "tiny links."

Ben Herrick, 1912 Maple street, took second with a score of 47, par. Vic Baird, 103 West Third street, was third with 50.

Sixteen participated in the tournament.

LEISHMAN "FARMED"

HOLLYWOOD, April 17.—Ed Leishman, Hollywood recruit shortstop, today is slated to leave Oscar Vitt's squad temporarily to join Denver in the Western league, for more seasoning. He will be recalled at the end of Western league play.

GRIDDER SCORES KAYO

NORMAN, Okla., April 17.—Frank Cidren, 175, University of Oklahoma football captain in 1929, won on a technical knockout from John Naden, 173, of Texas, in the third round of a scheduled 10-round bout here last night.

Big Card as Usual Next Thursday

Orange County Athletic Club

San Clemente Stronger For Next Contest

SAN CLEMENTE, April 17.—Still smarting under the track meet score defeat handed them by Encinitas last week, the San Clemente Dons are laying new plans for the offense against the Escondido nine at Escondido Sunday in a San Diego-Orange County league game. The Dons have yet to win a battle in the new loop.

Manager Frank Rowland announces that an improved team will take the field at Escondido. A new pitcher, Jim Young, of Three Arches, may take the mound. He at least will be on hand to relieve Hall should that man weaken. George Peris will be behind the bat. At shortstop will be Smith, a regular unable to play last week.

ORANGE COUNTY BOXING ARENA DARK TONIGHT

Promoter Henry T. Foust will keep the padlock on his Orange County Athletic club here tonight. This will not be "Fite Nite" at the Delhi road establishment.

Because this is Easter week, Foust will keep his arena "dark" until next Thursday at which time "Wild Man" Macias, bulky Los Alamitos welterweight, receives his diploma from the preliminary division and graduates into the main event class. Macias will be sent against Billy Clark, veteran Long Beach fighter who has always been a consistent winner on the southside.

Warren Frakes and Urban Hernandez, lightweights, have been matched for the semi-windup.

Foust is planning a double main event next week and for it already has obtained the services of Joe Goeders, local light heavy who lost a hair-line decision to Lee Ramage last week. Goeders' opposition has not been selected yet.

Carmen Tuzzolino, former amateur champion, was first considered but plans to use him were abandoned when it was learned Tuzzolino would be too light for "Jolting Joe."

Jack Iman is "coming back." After training seriously for two months and proving to the satisfaction of Promoter Foust that he was ready to step in the ring again, Iman has been promised an early bout at the Orange County Athletic club.

The veteran Santa Ana midweight, now a light heavy, would like to start against Joe Goeders or Lee Ramage but his first assignment probably will be somebody less tough.

Jack Sparr, the toughest man to whip in the welterweight division, believes he is entitled to another bout in Santa Ana. Sparr's requests do not seem prohibitive.

The crafty Santa Fe Springs battler hasn't shown here since New Year's eve when he easily outpointed Romeo Lemon. Two weeks before that Sparr gave Jimmie Rivers the worst beating of that worthy's career, outclassing even more decisively than did Freddie Fitzgerald.

Neither of the matches drew well but that was not Sparr's fault. The combination of Christmas holidays and stormy weather would have kept 'em away if Jack Dempsey had been booked to fight.

Sparr says he will meet any welterweight Foust picks for him but prefers Young Harry Wills, the San Diego dandy who is the only man on record to stop Sparr in nearly 10 years of mauling. The towel has been thrown in to save Jack unnecessary punishment several times in his 500 or so bouts but only Wills ever put him away to a point where the referee tolled 10 seconds over him. Jack would like to reverse that verdict.

NEW YORK RACING Season Is Begun

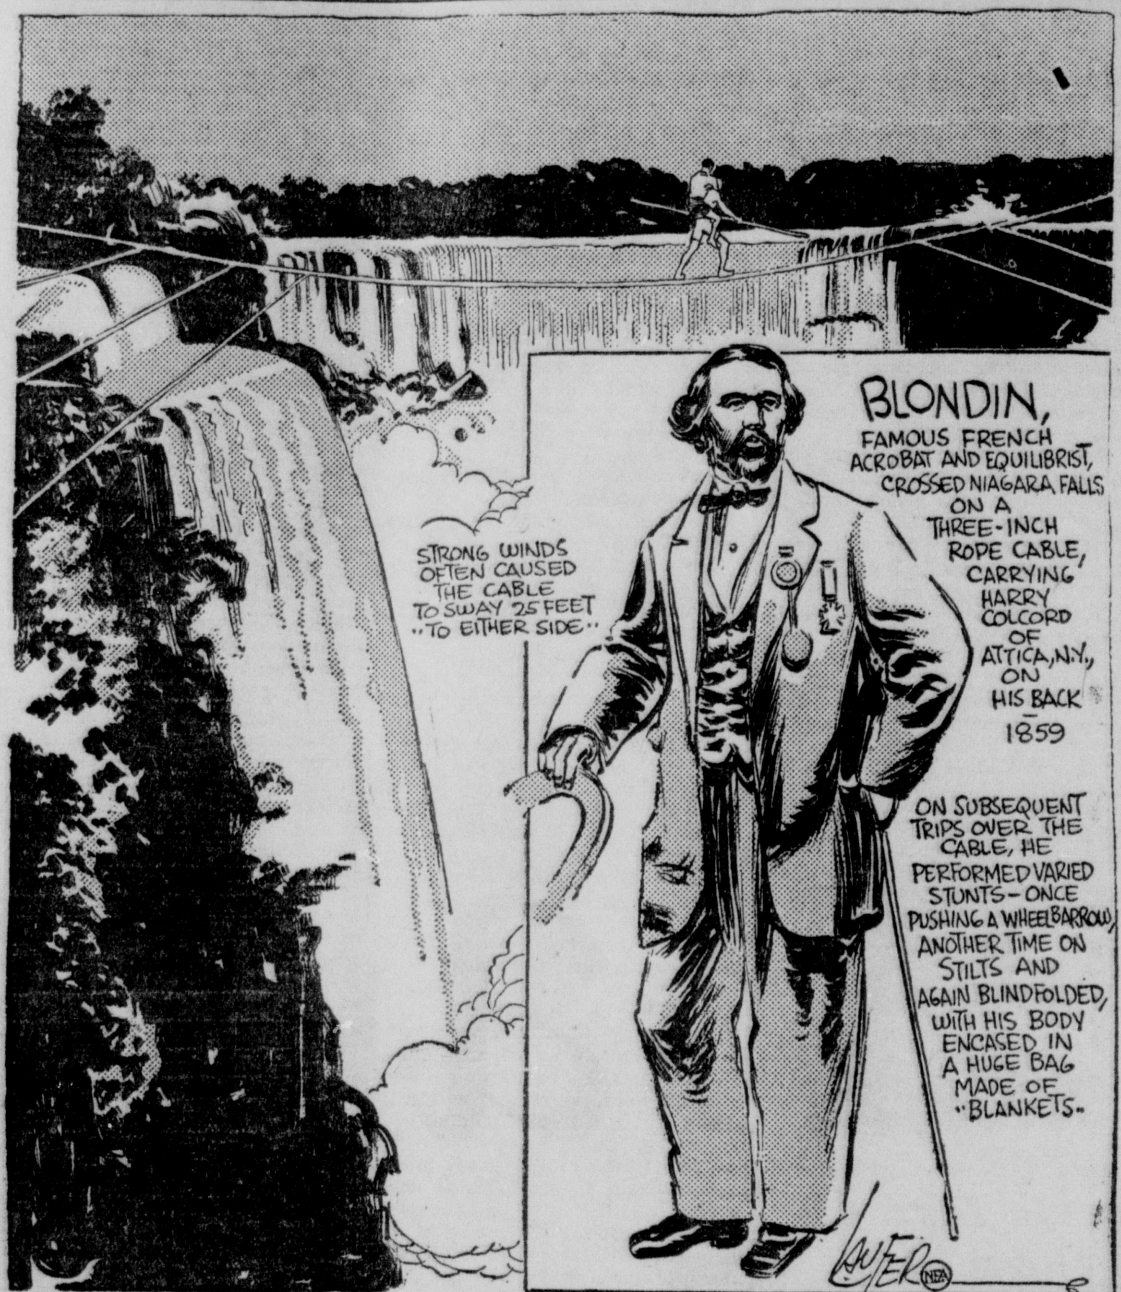

NEW YORK, April 17.—New York racing followers flocked today to the Aqueduct course on the 1930 Metropolitan season.

Seven well-filled events were on the inaugural card of the united hunts meeting. The two features of the day were the Billmore steeplechase and the Initial Handicap, a six-furlong flat race with an added value of $2000.

Anyhow, this was only one silly trade. What of the others? The Giants, for example, traded him for Vic Aldridge and the latter is

GRIMES SOUGHT BY CARDINALS CHICAGO CUBS

BY DAVIS J. WALSH (I.N.S. Sports Editor)

NEW YORK, April 17.—Seeking a sure pennant in the 20 or more games he would win on their behalf, the Chicago Cubs and the St. Louis Cardinals already have made overtures to the Boston club for Burleigh Grimes. Both offers were bona fide. Both were refused.

These statements were fired point blank at the writer today and the man who vouchsafed them may be designated as one who is in a position to speak with authority on the subject. His name is Grimes. He added that the Cardinals offered two players and the Cubs three, each proposal having a supplemental money inducement. This wasn't haircut money, it seems, but nevertheless the Boston club was looking pensively out the window.

Both the Cubs and Cardinals are ranking contenders, yet Grimes showed no regret that fate had cast him for a role whose prospects were all too dubious. In fact, he professed to hold no resentment for anybody, not even those who last week arranged a preposterous trade, whereby he went from a possible pennant winner, the Pirates, to a probable tail-end, the Braves.

Paraphrasing old Uncle Tom, he dismissed the incident lightly. "They can sell my body," said he, "but my career belongs to Burleigh Grimes. They can't take that away from me. I'll be pitching baseball when some of the men they trade me for, and even perhaps some of the men who trade me, are gone."

Grimes makes quite a point of philosophy and tolerance. He wants the Pirates to win the pennant, of the Braves can't. He wants Percy Lee Jones, the man who figured with him in the year '26, to win 25 games this year. Yet, deep down, there must be a feeling of pained incredulity toward the series of asinine deals in which he has figured.

The Pirates were satisfied to take Jones, an indifferent left hander, and Grimes, no doubt feeling a bit defensive about the matter, attempts to explain it thus: "That Jewel Ens, the new Pirate manager, feared to keep Grimes more than he feared to let him go; that Dreyfuss threatened to reduce his original offer unless Grimes signed promptly at the terms presented, a threat he found so intolerable that he says he asked to be traded."

Anyhow, this was only one silly trade. What of the others? The Giants, for example, traded him for Vic Aldridge and the latter is

Schmeling Due To Arrive In U. S. May 3

NEW YORK, April 17.—(INS)—Max Schmeling, German heavyweight, will arrive in New York May 3 to enter training for his bout with Jack Sharkey on the Milk fund card at the Yankee stadium June 12. It was announced today. He will sail from Germany April 25.

CARNERA BOUT REPORT TO BE MADE MONDAY

SAN FRANCISCO, April 17.—Charles Traung, of the California state athletic commission, will make a complete report of his findings in connection with the investigation into the Primo Carnera-Leon Chevalier bout to his associate commissioners Monday.

The preliminary investigation was concluded late yesterday. The events surrounding the sudden and confusing end of last Monday's fight were thoroughly probed by Traung and his associates.

The heavyweight bout was brought to a dramatic close when Bob Perry, a minor second for Chevalier, tossed a towel into the ring during the sixth round.

"I believe Perry's act was inspired by someone," Traung said. "I do not think Perry took it on himself to do it."

The commissioner, who has jurisdiction over Northern California, viewed with displeasure a proposal of Leon See, one of Carnera's managers, for a rematch with Chevalier.

See proposed another bout, the proceeds of which should go to charity. If there was a rematch at all Traung felt that those who held stubs for last Monday's fight should be given admittance free. To See could not agree, stating that such a course would be an admission that Carnera was guilty of an irregularity Monday night.

Bill Tilden Defeats Pro Tennis King

BEAULIEU SUR MER, France, April 17.—William Tilden II defeated Karel Kozeluh, world professional champion, 6-4, 6-4, in the first test between a top ranking amateur and a professional court star yesterday.

The match was an impromptu contest. At the top of his game Tilden II bewildered the little professional with cannonball service and strong backhands.

It is not believed that the French Tennis federation will protest Tilden's action in playing a professional.

CHURCH TEAMS OPEN BASEBALL RACE SATURDAY

Baseball for younger boys will get under way next Saturday night at the Santa Ana Y.M.C.A. on a schedule involving 10 teams, representing local Sunday school groups, which are to engage in a series lasting 10 weeks.

Games will be played every Saturday on the "Y" playground, one game starting at 7 o'clock, and the second one at 8 o'clock. On account of limited facilities, all games will be limited to one hour.

The first game will be between the First Presbyterians and the First Baptists, and the second will involve First Congregational and Richland Avenue M. E. teams.

An succeeding evenings, games will be played by Evangelical, Orange Avenue Christian, Spurgeon Methodist, United Presbyterian and Church of Christ boys.

The league is scheduled to complete its play June 14, at which time the two high teams will play off for the championship of the league.

The regular Santa Ana Church league is already playing its schedule, games being scheduled for Monday, Thursday and Friday evenings on the Y.M.C.A. playground, beginning at 7 o'clock.

Teams entered include First Christian, First Baptist, Methodist South, Christian Missionary Alliance, First Methodist and Nazarene.

Clubmen To Enter Trials For Relay

LOS ANGELES, April 17.—Sprinters and distance runners who will represent the Los Angeles Athletic club in the West Coast relays at Fresno April 26, are to be selected at tryouts scheduled for Boulevard Saturday. Boyd Comstock said today. The Mercury coach is especially anxious to put strong 440 and 880-yard teams on the track.

MIAMI BEACH, Fla., April 17.—(INS)—Gar Wood's sleek thunderbolt of grade and power—Miss America VIII—was being crated today for shipment back to Detroit, where the international speed boat champion will attempt to attain a speed of 100 miles an hour this summer.

Wood's new speedster will be shipped Saturday. He abandoned all further attempts to attain the century mark here after it was learned that Odie Porter, official timer, is ill and would not be able to be on hand for at least two weeks.

Skimming over the Indian creek course here yesterday at an unofficial clip of 96.2 miles an hour, Wood considerably bettered his former record of 93.13 miles an hour attained here last year over the same course.

WOOD TO SEEK NEW SPEEDBOAT RECORD

TWELVE CLUBS WILL COMPOSE CIRCUIT. PLAN

With only one franchise still to be awarded and three applications on file for it, officials and team managers of the Santa Ana City league will assemble in the council rooms of the city hall tonight for final consideration of rules and regulations.

Justice Kenneth Morrison, chairman of the City League commission, which also includes Deputy District Attorney S. B. Kaufman and T. J. Neal, said the meeting would begin at 7 o'clock and urged all representatives to be present.

"We want to go over the rules carefully," Morrison stated, "so there will be no misunderstanding in the middle of the season. We also want to approve officially the schedule which has been drawn."

Twelve teams will parade postward when the season is ushered into the Santa Ana sporting arena. The eleven already approved are the Excelsior Creamery company, Auto Club of Orange county, Court House, Dennis Printers, American Legion Bugle and Drum corps, Richfield Oil company, Shell Oil company, Pacific Telephone and Telegraph company, Orange County Builders' exchange, Santa Ana Commercial company and the Eastern Oil company.

When this league begins operations Santa Ana will have continuous night baseball through the summer.

An amalgamation of the old Night and Twilight leagues, the enlarged city circuit will play six games each week, with double-headers scheduled Mondays, Wednesdays and Thursdays, the first contest beginning at 7 o'clock. There will be no city league ball played Tuesdays or Fridays when the Santa Ana Stars, fast independent team, will have control of the Bowl.

GRIMES SOUGHT BY CARDINALS IN RACE TRACK CHICAGO CUBS DRIVING. CLAIM

no longer in the major leagues and hasn't been for two years, during which Grimes has won more than 40 games. It seemed he had no comment to make on this masterpiece.

What, then, of the Brooklyn trade, by which the Dodgers took title to Henline, a third rate catcher?

"The up off on that was that they didn't need catchers," he said with a smile at his own expense. "It was apparent that somebody decided that any price was a reasonable one."

"I have my faults," came a hasty afterthought. "I don't say 'yes' when I mean 'no.' I'm crazy to win and maybe I force some of my enthusiasm on others. But I'm not trying to steal anybody's job when I try to help young players. Their development helps the club and that helps me. I need eight good men out there or I don't win the ball game. That's mere horse sense."

However, if anybody in baseball feels the slightest animosity for Grimes, he is pleased to reply that he himself feels none.

McGraw? It was a real pleasure to work for him.

Donnie Bush? The greatest guy in the world.

Dreyfuss? To Grimes, he is "Mr. Dreyfuss." It seems, and the inference is that their relationship was at least a respectful one.

Robbie? They don't speak, but this, says Grimes, is just an incident.

"We all need each other in this game," was his valedictory and not a bad one.

Smarter men have said dumber things than this.

LOS ANGELES, April 17.—

Three outstanding dirt track racing pilots who admit having widely different styles of driving a 100-lap race, will be among the favorites Sunday afternoon at the American Legion speedway. The trio are Mel Kenaley, "Stubby" Stubblefield, and Walt May.

Stubblefield, who has throttled his trim little Garnant Special to three major victories this year, says he has adopted the tactics of several great old-timers of the game. Which consists of shooting for second place and then hoping that the breaks will bring him home in front. It is claimed that Harry Hartz won several big races in this way.

Kenaley, who used to handle the Garnant Special which Stubby manipulates, got into an argument with Russell Garnant, the owner, last year and therefore made a change. The row revolved around the fact that Kenaley would not watch pit signals and wanted to lead a race from the outset while Garnant believes in letting someone else set the pace. Kenaley now drives for John Val and says his new boss, owner of the Padre Special, is in favor of him forging into the lead from the start.

Walt May says he makes a note of the qualifying times made by the entrants and then figures out approximately what average speed per lap will be made by the winner. "Then I stay as close to that mark as I can," says Walt. "If my car holds out I'm right among the leaders at the finish—if I don't win."

EL MODENA

Miss Katherine Kuller, of Los Angeles, is the house guest of her cousin, Miss Lucille Reisch.

Mr. and Mrs. W. A. Settle and daughters, the Misses Henrietta and Hazel; Mr. and Mrs. R. C. Adam and daughter, Miss Eva; Mrs. Wisner and daughter, Miss Edna Wisner, of Orange, spent Sunday at Montrose as the guests of Mr. and Mrs. Herschel Settle.

The following group from the El Modena church attended the Christian Endeavor banquet which was held at the Presbyterian church in Orange Saturday evening: Mrs. Joseph Reece, the Misses Wilma Stanfield, Louise Ward, Phyllis and Thelma Danner, Frances Barnett, Clara and Martha Stanfield, Grace Moody, Luther Hadley, David Dozier, Logan Garner, Harold Stanfield and Henry Stoner.

Goodyear offers a new heavy duty Balloon

A BEAU BRUMMELL
for Looks

A HUSKY
for Wear?

Here's a new tire by Goodyear for the heavy car, the fast driver, the tough and rocky road—for any service that's arduous in the extreme!

It steps apart from other Heavy Duty balloons not only by its greater strength and improved construction, but also by its strikingly handsome appearance.

It's a big, stout, massively proportioned tire, armored with an extra-thick and extra-safe All-Weather Tread, and around its sleek black side-wall runs a single identifying stripe of silver.

New and original is the way in which the outer rows of All-Weather blocks are faceted down into the side-wall, a touch as smart as anything in modern sculpture.

You may be willing to pay a little more for a tire which gives you extra immunity against puncture, extra protection against blowout, extra mileage even in hard continuous service.

If you feel that way about it, go see the nearest Goodyear Dealer, and have him change over your car's tire equipment to these new Goodyear Heavy Duty balloons today!

Service Clubs Act To Support State Park Project

DRUMM NAMED NEW PRESIDENT OF COUNTY BAR

Election of officers for the ensuing year and decision to invite the board of governors of the State Bar association to meet with the Orange County Bar association in the near future was the outstanding action taken at the dinner meeting of the latter organization last night at St. Ann's Inn.

The officers who were elected last night are as follows:

President, Frank C. Drumm; first vice president, Albert Launer, of Fullerton; second vice president, Ben E. Traver; third vice president, Thomas L. McFadden, Anaheim; secretary-treasurer, George Parker. Two other members of the association were elected to act with the officers as the executive committee. They are Judge Homer G. Ames and Otto Jacobs. Parker was re-elected to his position and Launer was advanced from second to first vice president. The others all are new officials.

Stanley Reinhaus, retiring president, and Drumm furnished cigars for the group.

Instructions to the executive committee to invite the board of governors of the State Bar association resulted from action on a motion introduced by L. A. West. The date for this event is to be set to meet the convenience of the state association officials.

Charles Swanner was acting secretary at the meeting last night during the absence of Parker.

WOMAN'S ARRIVAL THWARTS BURGLAR

Mrs. C. A. McWaters, of 602 Orange avenue, returned to her home last night in time to see a burglar standing in the doorway of her bedroom. She spoke to the intruder and he dashed out a side door.

The thief apparently had just entered the house when he was disturbed, as nothing was reported missing. Entrance was made through a rear door, after a screen had been cut.

Miss Blanche Brown, of 333 Spurgeon building, reported to police yesterday that a typewriter, worth $50, was stolen from a closet in her office. The door of the office was not locked.

Arrange Funeral Of Placentia Man

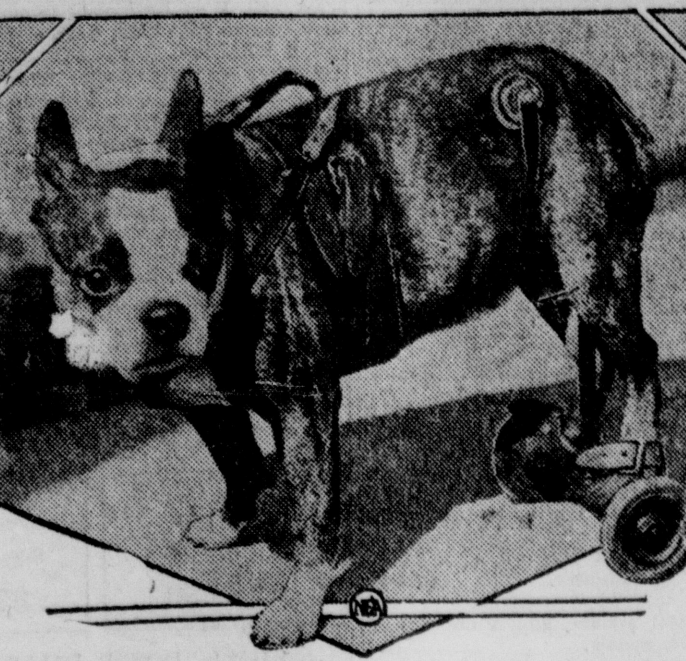

ANAHEIM, April 17. — Funeral services for C. C. Shipman, 57, who died at the county hospital yesterday morning, will be held Friday at 2 p. m., from the Hilgenfeld funeral home in Anaheim.

The deceased had been a resident of Placentia for the past 10 years. He is survived by his widow, two sons, Haskell H., of Placentia, and Charles E., stationed at Fort Rosecrans, San Diego, and two sisters, Mrs. Julia Baker and Mrs. Lizzie Bialock, both of Arizona.

The Rev. Don Milligan of Calvary church will officiate at the chapel and the Odd Fellows will have charge at the graveside in Loma Vista Memorial park.

WHEELS HELP INVALID DOG

When Lady Lou, crippled Kansas City dog, wants to take her daily exercise, a little thing like a fractured spine and paralyzed hind legs can't stop her. At least, not when Mrs. F. H. Nunnink, her kind mistress, provides this unique device of straps and braces mounted on rubber-tired wheels. Propelled by her forelegs, Lady Lou makes good time on the sidewalk. The dog was permanently injured when struck by an auto.

ABOLITION OF NEWSPAPERS HUMOROUSLY ADVOCATED IN TOASTMASTERS' DISCUSSION

That newspapers should be abolished, now that radio has taken the place of these trouble-making, propagandized sheets, was the contention humorously advanced by speakers at the Toastmasters' club meeting, last night, at the Y. M. C. A., in an impromptu discussion of the distribution of news.

"Newspapers are of very little use nowadays," said one speaker. "We used to need them to light our fires in the kitchen stove and most of them were too wet then to start a fire with. Now that they are dry enough to burn well, we cook with gas or electricity, and so do not need them any more. The radio gives us the news, three times a day, and the newspapers are an extravagance."

Other speakers defended the newspapers on the ground that while the news reports may be mostly "ganned" propaganda, the editorial columns sometimes carry local and original material which is worth while, and that the preservation of news of the day, in bound files of the daily papers, may ultimately be a useful contribution to posterity. The able defense thus presented averted any formal action looking to the suppression of the press, and so the Toastmasters proceeded with their formal program, which dealt at length with the problems of the motion picture business.

W. K. Hillyard was toastmaster. W. J. Ferris presented a study of the motion picture business, tracing its development from the days when Senator Leland Stanford wanted to get some detailed studies of the action of a horse's feet in motion down to the present day of highly complicated talking pictures. He spoke particularly of the great effects which this industry has had on allied lines of business, mentioning the building industries and the matter of organ building especially. Ferris mentioned the fact that the manufacture of films requires four times as much silver annually as is used by the government in coinage.

"The Movies in Education" was the theme under which A. G. Green described experiments which have

KIWANIS CLUB HEARS PASTOR IN EASTER TALK

Speaking on the subject, "Easter as a Prophecy of Life," at the meeting of the Kiwanis club, yesterday, Dr. George Warner, pastor of the First Methodist church, said that the sole objective of life is just more life and that there is little difference in the moments just before and after death.

The speaker pointed to the home, the church and schools as institutions fostered for the development of more life and emphasized the point that Easter gives promise of life and hope, promises of life eternal.

"The promise of eternal life puts hope in the world," said the divine, as he explained that when life in this world ends it continues with new environments.

Walter Kring, director of religious education at the First Presbyterian church, officiated as program chairman and introduced Mrs. Arthur May, who entertained with two vocal selections, "Angels Roll the Rock Away" and "The Little Tree." She was accompanied by Miss Irma Baxter.

The club will meet next Wednesday at the pipe plant of the National Cement Pipe company, on the state highway between Santa Ana and Anaheim, as guests of Wells and Bressler, operators of the plant.

CLAIM BRIDEGROOM BROKE PROBATION

Orvel E. Dennis, 19, Santa Ana Gardens, who had deputy sheriffs escort him home Tuesday night because a number of his friends were anxious to charivari him and keep him away from his bride a few days, today is further away from her than ever. He is in the county jail, booked on a charge of violation of probation.

Charges of perjury may be lodged against Dennis in connection with his marriage in Yuma, according to Carl S. Warner, assistant probation officer, who declared today that the girl he married was only 13 years old.

Dennis was on probation in connection with a stolen car, Warner said.

An investigation is being made today by the probation office.

Mrs. A. C. Pickering and daughters, Elmore and Carolyn, and Miss Irene Stanley spent Monday in Los Angeles.

Mrs. A. B. McDavid and children went to Pasadena Monday to visit Mrs. Donald Munger.

Mr. and Mrs. James H. Hammon, of Los Angeles, were Sunday guests in the home of their aunt, Mrs. J. A. Small.

L. A. MAYOR TO MAKE EASTER ADDRESS HERE

Definite assurance that Mayor John Porter, of Los Angeles, will be in Santa Ana next Sunday as the Easter guest speaker for the Men's Community Bible class was received today by W. B. Martin, president of the organization. Class officials are making preparations for a capacity attendance in the Fox West Coast theater, where the meeting will be held, commencing at 9:30 a. m.

A special musical program, in keeping with the season, has been arranged for the occasion, featuring two radio artists who are well known to radio audiences of Southern California. Marion Sevier, of Long Beach, soloist and teacher of artistic whistling, who has been heard over KREG, will appear on the program with a whistling solo, "Adieu," by Friml, and also will give an obligato of bird imitations during the vocal solo of the other entertainer, Lizetta Phillips, widely known Santa Ana and KREG soprano.

Miss Phillips, who has studied under Madame Beatrix De Whyte-mere, of Los Angeles, will sing the beautiful selection, "I Know That My Redeemer Liveth," from Handel's oratorio, "The Messiah." She will be accompanied at the piano by Mrs. Ethel O. Briggs and will be assisted by Miss Sevier.

For this special Easter service, the class has extended an invitation to the public and opened the services to the women of the city.

BREAKFASTERS HEAR MUSICAL PROGRAM

A varied musical program was presented before the Santa Ana Breakfast club, this morning, at St. Ann's Inn, with the program under the direction of Dr. E. D. Kilbourne, Stanley Clem and Isador Fields.

Miss Gloria Clem, accompanied at the piano by her mother, Mrs. Stanley Clem, gave a clever acrobatic dance, Miss Kathleen Kilbourne, assisted by Miss Aileen Lair, presented a group of songs and instrumental numbers, depicting the dance music of Hawaii, Argentina, France and the United States. Miss Lorraine Turk, talented young dancer, gave a gypsy dance and a clogging number, with her mother, Mrs. A. Turk, at the piano.

Paul LeBar, pianist for the Breakfast club, offered his resignation this morning because of conflicting activities.

Gray Johnson will be chairman of next week's program, on which Mrs. Frances Hunt Beeson will feature a group of singers. During National Music week, May 4 to 11, a program will be furnished the Breakfast club by the music committee.

PLAYS 'SYMPHONY IN TIN'

"Tin Pan Alley" happened to be a park in this instance. Playing a queer instrument made entirely of kitchen utensils, Bonnie Harmon, above, led trumpeters of the Long Beach, Calif., "Pot and Pan Kitchen Band" in its first parade. The musicians, organized by women of Mooseheart Legion, offered a weird composition, "Symphony in Tin."

Fellowship of Prayer

Daily Holy Week Devotion

Council of the Churches of Christ in America

"Coming to Terms With Ultimate Things" is the theme for the daily devotions during Holy Week in the Fellowship of Prayer Program. Today the subject is "Help Through Hope" and the fifth of the series is as follows:

SCRIPTURE — Memory verse: "They feared as they entered into the cloud; and a voice came out of the cloud" (Luke 9:34, 35).

Read: Luke 9:28-36.

MEDITATION — The cloud was not as fearful as the disciples thought. A voice came out of it showing that God was in it. Few situations are as dark as they at first appear to be. If we enter the situation bravely we find good in it that we had not suspected. Resources come to us in hours of crisis.

Peter found the iron gate open when he got to it. Dr. Gundersen in his early days preached a memorable sermon on the words: "Nevertheless—afterward." What seems catastrophe may appear far otherwise in the light of subsequent events.

Ye fearful saints, fresh courage take;
The clouds ye so much dread
Are big with mercy and shall break
In blessings on your head.

PRAYER — O Thou, who lovest the strength of men and whose rewards are for the seeing eye and the path-finding spirit, inspire us to trust Thee greatly and be unafraid. In days of cloud teach us to listen for a voice that is within the cloud. Amen.

PETITIONS TO BE CIRCULATED AMONG VOTERS

The greatest asset that could be added to Orange county and be a benefit to the public at large would be the proposed coast park between Newport Beach and Huntington Beach, according to Tom Talbert of Huntington Beach, the speaker at the joint meeting of the Newport Beach Exchange club and the Costa Mesa Lions club Wednesday noon at the Friday Afternoon clubhouse.

Talbert stated that the cost of the land in this section, for ocean frontage being assessed for this purpose, was about 50 per cent less than other such appraisals.

George Peabody, well known Newport Beach pioneer, gave his approval to the proposed state park and corroborated Talbert's statements.

S. H. Lucas stated that, in his opinion, government by resolution had gone out of date with the defeat of the last bond election. He continued that, as he saw it, service clubs should serve their communities and reflect the wish of the taxpayers, and suggested that petitions be prepared stating the facts, and circulated through the several service organizations of the county, so as to secure a fair cross-section of opinion.

A motion was passed that a resolution be circulated among the service clubs, American Legion posts and chambers of commerce in regard to the park and sent to the supervisors.

The Rev. A. F. Hase was pianist. Thirty members of the Exchange club were present, also the following other guests: Roy Adkinson, Santa Ana; Bob Fernandez, Santa Ana; Albert Bowen, of Los Angeles; F. E. Russell and D. J. Dodge, Costa Mesa.

C. B. Diehl, George Macleod, S. H. Lucas and W. W. Middleton, with Tom Talbert as advisor, were appointed to draft the park resolution and circulate it. Mrs. Alex Olson was in charge of the luncheon, put on under the auspices of the Friday Afternoon club.

Mrs. Nisson Entertains Informal Club of Bridge Players

That friendly little group of young matrons who have adopted the idea so popular now in the east, of forming a "bridge" club, met yesterday with Mrs. Clarence Nisson in her pretty home on Red Hill avenue, Tustin.

According to custom, Mrs. Nisson had her tables arranged for serving the inviting dessert course immediately after the arrival of her guests. For each table she used a graceful bud vase holding a single perfect rosebud combined with sprays of waxen pink begonia blossoms. Places were marked with Easter eggs bearing the name of the individual guest, and other Easter symbols were used in the appointments for bridge. Quantities of flowers, mostly roses, were used throughout the home.

Miss Louise Montgomery assisted her cousin, the hostess, in serving the refreshments. Miss Montgomery, her sister, Miss Gertrude Montgomery, and Mrs. Herbert Allenman were invited guests, while club members present included in addition to the hostess, Mrs. Nisson, Mrs. Wayne Gebbie, Mrs. John Wehrly Jr., Mrs. Robert Niss, Mrs. LaMont, McFadden, Mrs. Fred Newcomb Jr., Mrs. Cassius Paul, Mrs. Orlyn Robertson and Mrs. Allen Wallace.

In tallying the scores at the close of the afternoon bridge contest, Mrs. Wallace was high among the club members, and Miss Gertrude Montgomery, among the guests, so each received an attractive reward.

Jack Fisher Auxiliary Holds Installation Of Officers

Installation ceremonies of the Jack Fisher auxiliary to the local post of the Disabled American Veterans association, held last night in the home of Mrs. J. A. Fisher, 616 South Birch street, were rendered doubly interesting by the social features with which the meeting was brought to a close.

Mrs. Harry S. Pickard was installed as commander of the auxiliary, with Mrs. Harry D. Edwards conducting the impressive ceremony. Mrs. Edwards is national senior vice commander and has filled important offices in the local and state organizations. She made the installation very impressive, inducting into office, in addition to Mrs. Pickard, Miss Lydia Fisher as senior vice commander; Mrs. E. L. Chittenden, junior vice commander; Mrs. H. O. Rasmussen, adjutant and treasurer; Mrs. Albert Jones, historian; Mrs. Frank J. Kelly, patriotic instructor; Mrs. Charles Spurrier, musician; Mrs. Lynn Pollins, sergeant-at-arms; Mrs. E. L. Redford, conductress; Mrs. Murray Vandermast and Mrs. Frank Walters, color bearers; Mrs. Harry D. Edwards, Mrs. Frank J. Kelly and Mrs. Carl Burns, executive committee.

Committee chairmen named by Mrs. Pickard, included Mrs. Edwards, welfare; Mrs. Carl Burns, ways and means; Mrs. Louis Riehl, membership; and Mrs. Pickard herself, publicity.

At the conclusion of the business session, the social features were introduced, when Mrs. Fisher and her daughter, Miss Lydia Fisher, served refreshments accompanied by formal bouquets of Cecil Bruner roses and blue forget-me-nots. The significance of the dainty color scheme was apparent when Mrs. Edward Struble was presented with the gift of the chapter, a daintily appointed baby basket in pink and blue, and the charming idea was further stressed by favors of wee pink cradles tied with blue ribbons.

Mrs. Louis A. Riehl, who has completed a successful year as commander of the auxiliary, was presented with a handsome bouquet in which the auxiliary colors of blue and orange were apparent.

Local Girl Pledged To Membership in Honor Sorority

Friends of Miss Elsie Toose of Santa Ana, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles H. Toose of 308 1-2 North Sycamore street, were interested in the announcement of her initiation into the Phi Beta Kappa honor sorority of Mills college, which is to take place Tuesday, April 29. Miss Toose received her key in a German major and is one of five members of the senior class to be initiated.

Dr. George P. Adams will be the speaker in the initiation program and deliver an address on the subject "The Promise of the Present Age," according to notices issued by the secretary, Francis Tierck. The lecture, which is open to the public, will be held in the concert hall of the Music building. Miss Doris Lisbeth Smith of Aurora, Ind., a graduate student at Mills, has been invited to read one of her poems on this occasion.

Proceeding on the open evening meeting, the private initiation will take place at 4 o'clock when the five seniors and three juniors recently elected will be formally inducted into membership. There will be a formal dinner in the Ethel Moore hall when guests of honor will be Dr. and Mrs. Adams.

CHURCH WOMEN SOCIETY- THE HOME WEDDINGS FASHIONS HOUSEHOLD FRATERNAL

Society Climbers Pave a Way to Inner Circle

(The eighth of a series of articles by Margaretta Roberts, who has been social secretary in the homes of some of the country's wealthiest families.)

The Newport dowager made much of Christmas. She had a Christmas list of about 350 people to whom she always sent gifts ranging in value from $50 to $10,000. We kept a book in which her gift records were kept for five years, containing an accurate list and prices of just what she had given and received from each friend during that time.

She may have been enormously wealthy but she wanted to receive a gift of approximately the same value as the one she gave.

One year she had a particularly poor Christmas, friends sending gifts that were greatly under the value of her own. That made her good and angry. "We'll cut down the list," she announced, and we went over the list and pared it down to about 50 people.

Then we waited for Christmas and her revenge.

Perversely enough, however, the dowager's regular list of givers did particularly well by her that year, and several new ones annexed themselves. When the house began to look like a gift shop, the dowager weakened.

On the day before Christmas, when the stores were particularly jammed, the old dowager relented and rushed me to the shops to do her buying. Clutched in my hand was a list containing more than 300 names of persons for whom I was supposed to buy something.

Despite the long list that I carried, the dowager telephoned me every few minutes of the day, adding another that had been necessitated by the arrival of a new gift at the house. I stayed at one of the best jewelry stores in the city until long after closing time—the dowager was so important that stores waited on her convenience—and still the ever mounting list of names came over the telephone. I bought for people without knowing whether they were young or old, married or single. I spent thousands of dollars.

But, alas, when I reached home that evening, dead tired, more gifts had come, and there was still indebtedness. The dowager was in tears. Her most important social rival had come across with

Theatrical Gauze for a Bed Room

Theatrical gauze is to do another job today, this time as a bedroom life-saver.

It was used in a bedroom which had not seen sunlight since the day the carpenter put the roof on the house—fresh air it had in plenty, but that was all. First of all, the walls got a coat of new paper, dainty loose sprays of sweet peas in the design. The wood work was painted a warm egg shell, and the bed, dressing table, bench and bed table one shade darker.

The windows, two large ones divided by a casing, were curtained in a lemon yellow gauze, not hung straight, but ruffled with a five-inch wide ruffle of gauze on side and bottom. The curtains were looped with a hand quite high up on a fixture which had a flower head of soft blue.

The beds, happily, were twins, and thus yard-wide gauze worked nicely into the scheme for spreads. A length was cut which just covered the bed from top to bottom, around this length went an eight-inch section, skimpily ruffled, with the ruffle open at both lower corners (so that the spread could fit around the bed posts) and onto this skimpily ruffle went another which came down to the floor and was a little fuller. The bolster cover was a double ruffled length, made so that it was a yard wide. The pillows were laid on it and slightly rolled up before placing on the bed.

If more color depth were desirable I would suggest lining the unruffled part of bolster and spread with an egg shell sateen.

The color scheme was tied together by the warm blue cushions used in a wicker arm chair, the carpet, a left-over, was a dark purple-blue, unusually effective against so much warmth and light. Tomorrow, I am going to tell you of a jeweled lighter that fairly reeked of lavish expenditure. The dowager had nothing to give in return.

She finally solved the problem by sending to the rival one of the gifts she had received from someone else.

In her next article the Social Secretary tells the inside story of the "debutante marriage mart."

TODAY'S RECIPE

Fauttemon
5 eggs
8 tablespoons powdered sugar
7 tablespoons whipped cream
1 teaspoon powdered Cardamon seeds
Sifted pastry flour to make thick enough to roll out
1-2 teaspoon salt
Cardamon seeds are a variety of ginger. Remove the capsule, dry the seeds, then crush very fine.

Have the cream ready whipped. Beat the eggs very light, adding the powdered sugar while whipping. Then mix in the whipped cream, salt and crushed Cardamon seeds and thicken with just enough flour to make the dough of rolling consistency.

The flour must be sifted three times before using and the eggs must be beaten frothy-light. No baking powder is used and the lightness of the cakes depends on careful mixing. Roll very thin, cut in small squares and fry in deep hot fat as you would doughnuts. Dry on soft paper. These cookies are delicious when freshly made.

Each of these small cakes has a calorie value of close to 75, and the calories are pure energy makers, or fat makers if you over-indulge.

Two courses with coffee, the subject of the current leaflet, applies to the food usually served for informal afternoon affairs. A sensible rule, yet one which allows a world of leeway if you have imagination. Perhaps you have run out of imagination. If so send me a stamped self-addressed envelope and I will send you a copy of the leaflet.

Baked rabbit, a new way to bake this well known step-relation to chicken, will be the subject of tomorrow's lesson.

'MURDER ON ROOF' THRILLS AUDIENCE

Columbia Pictures has made the famous Liberty Magazine mystery serial, "Murder on the Roof," into a thrilling all-talking motion picture. It closes tonight at Walker's State theater. Against a background that for novelty and picture-queens is unique—the entire action takes place on top of a metropolitan skyscraper—a strong, thrilling plot, with a mystery element that gripped last night's spectators and held them in absorbed suspense until the final denouement, was developed. The story has lost nothing in sophistication and tense dramatic climaxes by its transference to the screen.

Of the all-star cast, Dorothy Revier and David Newell might perhaps be picked out for special comment.

DOUBLE FEATURE AT WEST COAST

An all-star musical romance of old New Orleans, "Cameo Kirby," William Fox all-talking production, and "Rich People," a Pathe all-talker, come to the Fox West Coast theater today for a two-day run, succeeding "The Benson Murder Case," which closed there last night.

In these two features, patrons of the theater will find two entirely different themes. "Cameo Kirby" is the story of a river gambler who wins a daughter of aristocracy, while in "Rich People" the tables are reversed—a rich girl goes after a poor youth and gets him.

Norma Terris and J. Harold Murray, who will be remembered in "Married in Hollywood," have the principal roles in the first named picture, while Constance Bennett, Robert Ames and Regis Toomey have the principal parts in "Rich People."

The story of "Rich People" concerns a girl who, although engaged to a rich man, does not love him. She is saved from this by an insurance agent and falls in love with him. He realizes that she is not of his class, with all her money, and attempts to escape her, but the girl is persistent and wins him in the end.

A Fox Movietone news reel also is shown on the program.

'HELL HARBOR' TO CLOSE RUN TODAY

Final showing of "Hell Harbor," United Artists all-talking picture starring Lupe Velez, which has been exhibiting at the Fox-Broadway theater since last Monday, will be made today when the picture closes its four-day engagement.

A fast moving plot with an all-star cast makes the picture one of the best of its kind that has been seen here in the past several months. The story concerns the vivacious daughter of a white resident of a port in the Caribbean sea, which is known for its murders and other crimes.

The father, Harry Morgan, is a pirate in partnership with a murderer named Joseph Horngold, who plots to kill and rob a young American of his money, which he took to the port for the purpose of buying pearls. Lupe falls in love with the American and manages to save his life. He saves her life later on in the film and by so doing realizes that he has fallen in love with her.

Daring action, a bold plot and splendid acting by Miss Velez feature the film.

An all-talking comedy, a Krazy Kat cartoon with sound and a Fox Movietone newsreel complete the program.

Sun and Wind Bring Out Rusty-Brown Spots. How to Remove Easily

Even the woman with a tender skin need no longer dread the sun and winds. Though they cover her face with ugly freckles, she can safely fade them out in the privacy of her home with Othine.

After a few nights' use of this dainty white cream even the worst freckles have begun to disappear, while the lighter ones have vanished entirely. It's seldom that more than a jar of Othine is needed to clear the skin of the homely, rusty-brown spots.

Be sure to ask at any drug or department store for Othine double strength. It's always sold with guarantee of money back if it does not fade out even the worst freckles and give you a lovely, milk-white complexion.—Adv.

Selected from the entire field of radio, it was a Sparton which brought the broadcasts to the assembled crowds from the giant Fokker planes which arrived last week at the Los Angeles terminal of the Western Air Express, reveals Lloyd Sleeper, of Liggett-Sleeper Radio shop.

"From the time these huge monsters of the air took off from Barstow, they broadcast messages to the airport, telling of their course and giving interesting details of the trip. Spectators were thus enabled to follow them minute by minute through Cajon pass and down the San Gabriel valley," says the Sparton dealer.

"We are proud that our radio set was the one selected for this purpose. The problem to be met was exacting and we feel that the use of the Sparton is just another indication of the popularity and dependability of this receiver."

Acids In Stomach Cause Indigestion

Create Sourness, Gas and Pain. How to Treat.

Medical authorities state that nearly nine-tenths of the cases of stomach trouble, indigestion, sourness, burning, gas, bloating, nausea, etc., are due to an excess of hydrochloric acid in the stomach. The delicate stomach lining is irritated, digestion is delayed and food sours, causing the disagreeable symptoms which every stomach sufferer knows so well.

Artificial digestants are not needed in such cases and may do real harm. Try laying aside all digestive aids and instead get from any druggist some Bisurated Magnesia and take a teaspoonful of powder or four tablets in water right after eating. This sweetens the stomach, prevents the formation of excess acid and there is no sourness, gas or pain. Bisurated Magnesia (in powder or tablet form—never liquid or milk) is harmless to the stomach, inexpensive to take and is the most efficient form of magnesia for stomach purposes. It is used by thousands of people who enjoy their meals with no more fear of indigestion.—Adv.

Hundreds of Thousands in U. S. A. Demand New Kind of Salts

Keeps You in Good Health All the Time, Skin Clear and Body Free From Fat

Just think of it: these new, better and different salts were only introduced into America a few months ago—yet a host of intelligent Americans are healthier and happier because of their supreme goodness.

Kruschen Salts are the daily health dose of millions of people the world over—they are the largest selling medicinal salts in Great Britain.

One half teaspoon of Kruschen in a glass of hot water every morning gently but surely stimulates the liver, bowels and kidneys to healthy elimination.

But the six vitalizing and re-juvenating salts in Kruschen do more than cause regular elimination—the man or woman who takes them regularly need have little fear of poisons polluting the system which is the cause of many annoying and depressing ills.

One bottle of Kruschen Salts (lasts 4 weeks) costs but 35c and one bottle will prove of vast benefit to people who have constipation, headaches, indigestion, nervousness, rheumatism, depression, acidity and auto-intoxication.

Not only that but one bottle will bring about body activity—increased energy, vigor and ambition, sparkling eyes and freedom from pimples and blemishes—millions know all this—you ought to know it.

BREA CHAMBER TOLD OF TOOLS ON WILD WELLS

BREA, April 17.—The ease of capping burning oil wells with the new gate manufactured by the Shaffer Tool works at Brea was told to members of the Brea Chamber of Commerce yesterday at their regular meeting by the inventor of the gate, W. D. Shaffer.

This gate was used on the Bandier Petroleum corporation's Off No. 18 at Santa Fe Springs. While the well burned 32 hours before it was capped, it took only 4 1-2 hours of actual work to bring the well under control, in contrast to other wells which sometimes have burned for weeks before being conquered.

Shaffer also told of the big well in Oklahoma which has just been brought under control by use of Shaffer tools. Following a request from the people there for a shipment of tools by airplane, Frank Mason left for the scene and sent back an order for $15,000 worth of tools. The shop has been kept open day and night on this order, which is now ready to go out.

The capper used on the Oklahoma well has been used at Kettlemen hills and while built to withstand a gas pressure of from five to six thousand pounds, has sometimes been required to hold double that pressure.

Shaffer also told of the Standard Oil company's well at Taft, which is the deepest well in the world. The depth is now 9600 feet and contains the longest string of pipe ever run in a well, the length of the pipe being 8350 feet.

A communication from the department of commerce at Washington requested a detailed report on the Loftus airport site, with maps and sketches of the field and its vicinity, for use in an air bulletin which is to be published. This matter was turned over to the industrial committee.

An invitation from the Fullerton Chamber of Commerce was read, in which the official board of the Brea chamber was asked to attend a meeting of other boards at McFarland's cafe, Fullerton, April 24 at 6:30 p. m.

Notice was given of the meeting of the Imperial Highway Association at the Watts Chamber of Commerce building, April 18, and it was requested that reservations be sent in.

Mrs. Cummings announced that Mrs. Spensley had been able to obtain the chairman of publicity for the Los Angeles Chamber of Commerce as speaker for the regular evening meeting, and it was voted to hold this meeting May 15.

Announcement was made of the book review by Helen Haines at the Ebell club, Fullerton, Monday evening. This review is sponsored by the Monday Afternoon Reading club of Fullerton.

Mrs. W. J. Travers reported on the Booklovers' section, naming "Escape" and "Jungle Portraits" as among the interesting books read recently.

Mrs. William McLellan reported the receipt of a letter from Miss Grace Weston, of Hemet, southern district chairman of war veterans, who said that the Christmas work done by the Placentia club was the outstanding thing of the year in war veterans' work and that she had reported it to the state chairman.

Mrs. H. Lucy announced that the ways and means committee would like helpers to serve dinners on May first and tenth.

SUPER quality at a fair price is making MOTORITE the most widely used motor oil in this community.

MOTORITE is, first of all, super oily or extra slippery. Thus it minimizes friction and guarantees smoother operation.

Next, it has the ability to cling tightly to metal. This enables it to form a perfect seal between piston and cylinder wall to resist the intense pressure developed by gas explosions above. Maximum power is the result.

And MOTORITE is equally efficient at all working temperatures. As the engine warms and the metal parts expand MOTORITE automatically adjusts its viscosity in just the proper ratio to assure 100% perfect lubrication.

A fourth advantage is its great capacity for giving up and carrying away heat. This feature assures cool bearings and is noticed particularly when traveling long distances at sustained high speeds.

No Hard Carbon

The small amount of carbon deposited by MOTORITE is soft and fluffy, much unlike the hard, gritty carbon, common to many oils.

And finally MOTORITE is strictly non-acid—no possibility of corroding the metal of your motor.

These six advantages guarantee you longer service from your oil. Now, with MOTORITE you can drain at 200 miles farther than you have been in the habit of doing.

Don't miss this extra 200 miles. Specify MOTORITE on your next refill.

CHICAGO BD. OF TRADE

CHICAGO, April 17.—(UP)—Wheat closed an erratic course on the Board of Trade today with fractionally lower prices. The market came back strong at midday but the rally eliminated the shorts and weakened the position, prices falling back equally as sharply only to recover slightly.

LOS ANGELES, April 17.—(UP)—There was but little change in market prices today, with continued liberal receipts in practically all lines.

THE EASTER FESTIVAL

Easter is perhaps the most inspiring and helpful of all festivals in the world.

Easter is the celebration of the birth of that spark which kindles the finest and most permanent emotions known to mankind, and makes men perform miracles of mercy and self-control.

Easter epitomizes, symbolizes and celebrates the hope of human immortality.

Without this hope only the blackness and despair and the absolute night of oblivion remain.

It is reported that at one time Henry Ward Beecher was discussing religious matters with Robert G. Ingersoll. During the conversation Mr. Beecher said: "I saw a very sad sight today. I was walking in lower Broadway where the traffic was thickest and the roadway was muddy, when I saw a very old man with two crutches step carefully down from the curb to cross the busy street. He had hobbled painfully about half way across when a big, strong man darted from the sidewalk; took both crutches from the old cripple, and left him without support."

Mr. Ingersoll exclaimed with horror at the barbarity and meanness of the act, and said the brute should be severely punished. "Did you learn his name, Mr. Beecher?" "I did not," said Beecher, "but you, Mr. Ingersoll, you are meaner and more brutal than the ruffian in the street. You have a great intellect; you are strong and self-reliant; and you are robbing the weak and trusting of their faith and their hope, and leaving them to be trampled and destroyed."

On that morning, in Jerusalem, twenty centuries ago, when the devoted friends of Jesus discovered that He had cheated death and removed the sting from the separation of body and spirit, hope was born again in the world, and humanity had a renewed belief in immortality. The power of God over death had been demonstrated. Christ had risen from the dead.

Divorce yourself, if you can, from your belief that the soul of man shall live, and then analyze your own feelings in regard to your attitude toward life, its opportunities and obligations. The change in your outlook will startle you and you will wake as from a nightmare.

The idea of immortality was not new in Christ's time. Older philosophers had had glimpses of the inspiring possibility but Jesus made the reality vitalize the philosophy of all time.

"Come unto me all ye that are weary and heavy laden and I will give you rest."

The weak and the overburdened saw in the resurrection the ability to perform that promise and a demonstration that the ills of the world are not endless—that a better day is coming.

The "hope that springs eternal in the human breast" was given a reality and a vividness that makes the lowliest and meanest life bearable.

Easter, the festival of joy, we hail because again we are reminded of the blessed hope which gives us courage to go on.

A Philadelphia saxophone band of 60 pieces is planning to serenade President Hoover. There's brass for you.

THE INDIAN SITUATION

The news from India is very disturbing. Mahatma Gandhi, through his preaching of non-cooperation and civil disobedience, together with non-violence, has aroused the multitudes of India to almost a frenzy of patriotic, if not religious zeal. This resistance and policy has shown itself in several forms.

The manufacture of salt by Mr. Gandhi and his followers, and its distribution over certain sections of the empire is directly against the law governing the manufacture of salt, it being a government monopoly.

Many civil officers have resigned their offices and laid down their work.

The spirit of the revolt has spread among the students and even reached the higher sections of India's business and civil life. Mr. Gandhi has been furnished with means, of a considerable amount, from commercial organizations in the cities to help carry on his work. Great Britain is in a serious dilemma. If it were a violent revolt she would know how to deal with it. Gandhi has endeavored to prevent his followers from committing any act of violence. He has even gone so far as to declare that he will go on an eternal fast should they do this. It will be recalled that Gandhi went on a fast of some three weeks' duration when blood was shed between the Mohammedans and Hindus, which resulted in allaying hostilities at that time.

Great Britain hates to arrest Gandhi as the leader of this revolt. He is beloved as a saint and revered as a sage. His incarceration will in no way solve, but will aggravate, the problem. The independent princes throughout the empire, protected really by British rule, of course, are loyal to the British empire. Undoubtedly Great Britain would grant independence to the extent enjoyed by Canada and Australia, but this would not be acceptable. Even if it were, it is exceedingly doubtful whether the Hindus and the Mohammedans have a sufficient degree of tolerance, one for the other, to carry on a common government. It is a complex situation. It is a greater problem than that which Lord Clive met. While we have great reverence for the personality of Mahatma Gandhi, we seriously doubt if he has sufficient power of prophecy to know what the result would be should India have the power of independent government.

THE TREND OF POPULATION

At the beginning of our government we had from 70 to 80 per cent of our people living in the country and less than thirty per cent living under urban conditions.

This condition has been constantly changing until the reverse of these figures came to pass in 1900. Now we have thirty per cent of the people in the country and some seventy per cent living in villages and cities. The figures from the present census already indicate without serious question that the villages and those places we used to call urban, now are going and it is the big city that is growing.

Sixty per cent of the 161 small towns counted in Illinois and Indiana suffered a reduction of from five to one hundred per cent, while those that have increased have shown a normal increase due to birthrate. Not only has there been such decrease, but in some cases the towns have become entirely obliterated.

America is becoming a country of cities. Many things make it so. One of the chief factors are the roads which are being constructed, and the number of automobiles which are owned. Of course, generally speaking, the industrial work of the country is the answer, but the people, with the present highways and automobiles, can live in one place and work where they please. This herding of people in our cities is the basis of the most serious problem in American life. It has much to do with the difficulty of law enforcement and the inclination of law violation.

The movie director who paid $100,000 fine to escape punishment for dodging the income tax, now knows that money talks, too.

A GOLDEN HARVEST

An idea of what can be done in way of civic beautification at practically no cost is exemplified at Costa Mesa.

For a stretch of nearly half a mile the property adjoining the railroad tracks entering Costa Mesa from Santa Ana is a mass of gold—golden California poppies.

Two years ago public spirited citizens, aided by a small civic donation, raised enough funds to sow wild California poppies along the railroad right of way. Today these benefactors are reaping the harvest. And so is the general public. There is no more beautiful sight in Southern California than the half-mile stretch at Costa Mesa.

Later in the season other flowers will spring up and thus far into the fall the right of way will be a veritable riot of color, with one kind of flower in blossom following another.

The people of Costa Mesa have set an example that could be carried out by other communities. The cost is little and the harvest is great.

The California poppy is one of the most beautiful of spring flowers and is characteristic of California. Years ago they grew in profusion. Today they are few and far between. Costa Mesa is to be congratulated. Take a trip through there and feast your eyes upon nature in all her beauty.

"When you are very clever," says a writer, "you are shut out from a great number of common joys." Pity the columnists.

AN INCREASE IN TOURISTS

The All-Year-Round Club, of Los Angeles, declares that there has been an increase of five and eight-tenths per cent in the number of tourists who have arrived in California, over the corresponding period of 1929. Of the total of 121,789 tourists who came in through the various gateways of California, fifty-seven per cent came directly to the Southland. This is for the first quarter of 1930.

With this increase in the number of tourists, we would say that the tourist crop for California will be larger this year than heretofore. We wonder if the amount of money that is spent per tourist this year is as great as other years. This probably will be impossible to check.

Fisherman's Calendar Tells When They Bite

San Bernardino Sun
A fisherman's calendar has been published in Greensboro, N. C., which is guaranteed to be "surprisingly accurate for both inland and deep sea fishing, and for any waters in or surrounding the United States and Canada."

The calendar shows the months, weeks and days as on any calendar, but under every date is drawn a tiny fish. Some of these are white, some solid black and some mixed, with varying proportions of black or white. The key for using the calendar is contained in a statement at the top, "Blacker the fish—Better the day for fishing."

Beneath is the explanation that the calendar is "scientifically compiled, using the moon, the signs, and every known factor that has a bearing on fishing," as used by the "old timer" and also the modern sportsman. The canny fisherman who uses discretion—that is, who does not try to fish on days that are stormy or windy or in waters that are muddy—and follows the guidance of the calendar will have good fishing.

And even if he doesn't, he ought to be grateful to the calendar designer. It's an amusing document even to the uninitiated.

More Grade Crossings Granted Each Year

San Bernardino Sun
Much is said these days about the elimination of grade crossings. Railroads and local communities are supposed to be co-operating to push such work as rapidly as possible. Many grade crossings are eliminated every year.

It is rather discouraging, in view of popular hopes in this matter, to learn from the American Railway association that new grade crossings appear faster than old ones are removed.

In 1928, the association reports, 270 highway grade crossings were eliminated. That same year, 1,697 crossings were created. That leaves a net gain for danger. Isn't it possible to eliminate more grade crossings in the blue print stage of highway and railway construction?

OUR ANCESTOR

No wonder that the cave-man
Is vanished now and dead;
He must have been a brave man
To lead the life he led.
I never could have carried on
And kept myself from need
If I had had a mastodon
To feed.

The cave-man's nearest neighbors
Consisted of a brood
Of tigers toothed with sabers
And fond of human food.
He naturally kept all day
Within his cavern lodge,
With such a greedy beast of prey
To dodge.

His ways were sly and furtive,
His gait was sly and slow,
He was not self-assertive
Or braggadocio;
And when his nightly task was o'er
And home his way he'd wend,
He had a hungry dinosaur
To tend.

The trials he labored under
Wore out his nerve and grit;
It isn't any wonder
That he was thick of wit.
With predatory beasts about
His chance of life was small;
I marvel that he stuck it out
At all.

A Rival for Abou Ben Adhem

By WILLIAM TRUFANT FOSTER and WADDILL CATCHINGS

If you happen to stop off in Philadelphia between trains, don't let anyone inveigle you into a discussion about unemployment. Or if you do, don't attempt to dispose of the subject in the usual way: "Three million people out of work! Too bad, isn't it? How's your Uncle Joe's lumbago?"

That speech will be coldly received in Philadelphia. The first citizen you try it on will say: "Whose Uncle Joe? Now, speaking of unemployment, Morris Leeds says—"

And by the time you are able to inquire, weakly, "Where am I?", you will have missed your train by approximately three years.

For three years is the time Philadelphia thinks it will require for a thorough study of unemployment. And to Morris E. Leeds, a conscientious Quaker manufacturer, and Otto T. Mallory, former Industrial Commissioner of Pennsylvania, is due much of the credit for the fact that such a study is now well under way.

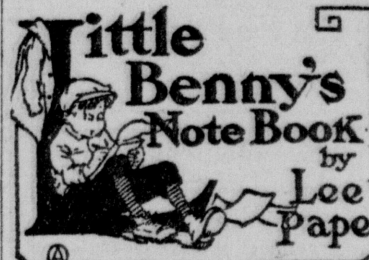

Philadelphia has seen a great light. It has discovered, says Mr. Leeds, "the one new important outlet for over-production, for which we have combed the seven seas." If, figures Philadelphia, our unemployed people could find jobs, they would have an earning and purchasing power of $5,000,000,000 a year. Philadelphia, admitting that its share of the five billions is not to be sneezed at, is setting out in its calm, methodical way to collect it.

Practically nothing is said about the humanitarian aspect of this program. Philadelphia, take it from her, is interested in getting her share of the five billion salvaged dollars.

This does not mean that "The City of Brotherly Love" is underserving of the title. The City is simply conforming to modern terminology. We used to practise commercialism and call it philanthropy. Now we practise philanthropy and call it commercialism.

Even so, when the next revised list of "those that love their fellow men" is published, we shouldn't be surprised to learn that Philadelphia and Abou Ben Adhem had tied for first place.

Me and Puds Simkins was wawking along just wawking along Juds saying, G, look at that automobile, aint that fearsome?

Wich we started to do, picking up 2 sticks out of the street and starting to scrape the mud off, and after about 15 minnits we had it all scraped off of one side, looking grate on that side and proving the automobile was blue underneath, and just then the man came out of the cigar store with a big cigar in his mouth and about 6 more sticking out of his pocket, saying, For the love of mud can I bleeve my eyes?

Proving he was surprised all rite, and I sed, We did it, mister, we did it with these sticks.

Thoughts On Modern Life

OWNING YOURSELF

The other evening I sat enthralled by a performance of Elmer Rice's Street Scene.

It was a drama of drab lives lived on a street of despair.

Race prejudice.

Jealousy.

Poverty.

Gossip.

Lust.

Loneliness.

These were the invisible companions that sat on squalid doorsteps and in slattern rooms, making ugly the lives of at least some of the inmates who hungered for beauty.

Finally the daughter of the tragic mother around whom the drama revolved cried out:

"I must live somewhere where I can breathe, and before I belong to anyone I must belong to myself first."

Here were two elements in Rose Murrant's plan for the pursuit of happiness:

Flight.

Self-mastery.

Flight from an environment against which one's spirit is bruising itself is sometimes necessary.

but flight was the less important part of Rose Murrant's plan.

She rose to greatness in the second part of her plan. She was right to say to the lad she loved that to give herself to him before she belonged to herself would be a hollow giving.

She must rise above race prejudice.

She must rise above jealousy.

She must rise above poverty.

She must rise above lust.

She must rise above loneliness.

This means self-mastery. Little

Rose was human enough to say first, "I must live somewhere where I can breathe," and trail this cry with, "And before I can belong to anyone I must belong to myself first."

The first lesson to be learned is this: When we rise above the sordid passions and prejudices of our environment, we do not have to run away from our environment to achieve happiness. Flight without self-mastery means little. Self-mastery can bring happiness even when flight is impossible.

OUR CHILDREN

BETTY'S CHOICE

"Today is your birthday, Betty. You can come down to the shop with me and pick out your birthday gift."

"Really, mother? Really? Can I? Pick out just what I want? I know just what. Hurry, mother hurry."

"What was it you wanted to get, Betty?" asked mother on the way to the shop.

"A parasol. A beau-ti-ful parasol. I saw it in the window. It's so beau-ti-ful, mother, you can't think. Let's go faster. Maybe somebody will get it before us."

Straight to the window where her treasure was displayed Betty led her mother. "There. That's it," and the excited child poked a trembling finger at the gay thing behind the glass.

"That one? The one with the roses? And all the beads?"

"That's it, mother. Isn't it the most loveliest one you ever saw?"

"Quite," said mother trying to recover from the shock.

"Let's get it. Can I carry it home myself?"

"Yes. But Betty, maybe there is another one you might like better. See. This one now. Wouldn't you like this one?"

"No, mother. Why it hasn't any roses. Nor any beads. Nor anything. It isn't a party parasol, mother. And I want a party parasol."

The saleswoman did her best to sell Betty a conventional parasol. The one in the window was an advertisement for a patent medicine show. It was cretonne patterned in huge faded roses. It was fringed about with multi-colored beads. It shrieked to heaven in blatant ugliness but Betty stoutly held to her first love and carried it home, proudly spread over head, with all the airs of a royal princess in procession.

"My word, Mary, what ailed you to buy the child such an atrocity as that?" whispered daddy that night when confronted by the amazing vision.

"I remembered the day my mother told me I could choose my own gift and I asked for a floppy hat with roses round the rim and she bought me a straw sailor with a quill. I was much older than Betty but I think I felt just as she did today. I remembered my hurt, my resentment. I had been craving crude things all my life and never was allowed any because they were in bad taste. I'm certain if mother had given me something as raw as this parasol when I was Betty's age I would not have been craving for that floppy hat when I was fifteen."

"So I got it for her. It made her perfectly happy. And I rather think she trusts me more than she did yesterday. She knows I did not choose that parasol. She chose it for herself. She knows I won't impose my notions upon her unless I have to and she'll trust me as I never did my mother—with little things that mean so much to girls."

"I know it's awful. But the next one will be better. If she was an artist at four what would she be at forty? Give her a chance to grow. I think it is healthier, mentally."

J. P. MORGAN'S BIRTH
On April 17, 1837, John Pierpont Morgan, American financier and art collector, was born at Hartford, Conn.

Following his education at the English high school in Boston and the University of Gottingen in Germany, Morgan entered the banking business in New York. He at once distinguished himself in the field of international banking.

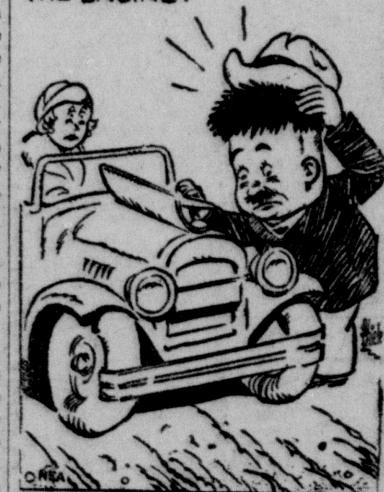

Some of his more noteworthy achievements were a syndicate to take up the bonds negotiated by President Cleveland and for the protection of the gold reserve; financing the largest reorganization of railways and consolidation of industrial properties in the United States and organizing the U. S. Steel corporation.

Morgan was the greatest art collector of his day, his collections being the largest, and probably the most important, owned by a single individual. In 1912 he gave to the Library of Congress a complete set of autographs of the signers of the Declaration of Independence. He died in Rome, March 31, 1913, while abroad for his health. His son succeeded him as head of the Morgan bank.
